AAF Institute of Technology
WITH an enrollment of 190 officers undertaking study in the fields of engineering and logistics, the AAF Institute of Technology at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, is now in full session.

The current session started 3 Sept. when 134 student officers enrolled in the engineering courses and 54 in logistics. The school faculty of 21 men is composed of both civilian and military professors. The school will run continuously throughout the year with three semesters of four months each.

The Commandant of the Institute is Brigadier General Mervin E. Gross. Although administered by the Commanding General of the Air Materiel Command, the curricula will be broadly supervised by the Air University, Maxwell Field, Alabama. This arrangement is to avoid duplication of effort and to coordinate AAF Institute of Technology with the Air University system.

Courses offered by the Institute are comparable in caliber to the last two years of civilian engineering colleges. Level of the work in both logistics and engineering is mostly undergraduate although there are some courses of graduate level in engineering. With few exceptions, courses are designed to run two years. The curricula is so arranged and faculty and students so selected as to facilitate early accrediting of the Institute to the end that formal degrees can be granted.

Students must agree to serve two years at the completion of their course.

The specific mission of the AAF Institute of Technology is to provide training which will assure scientific research, design and technical development of AAF equipment as well as the efficient execution of procurements, supply, maintenance, and service responsibilities assigned to the AAF. Its scope of instruction will be on a much broader scale than that given at the Air Corps Engineering School.

Students attending the Institute are from the following categories:

Regular Army and Category I officers (the latter being required to agree to remain with the AAF at least two years after graduation).

Officers who have completed at least two and preferably three years of college work leading toward a B.S. degree.

Those who have aptitudes for and desire AAF engineering assignments.

General Gross is especially fitted by education and experience to head the institute. A native of South Carolina, he was graduated from the United States Military Academy with the class of 1922. He began his flying training almost immediately and in 1924 had become a rated pilot.

Now a command pilot, combat observer and technical observer, General Gross is also a graduate of the following well known Army schools: the old Air Corps Engineering School in 1933 at Wright Field, which the AAF Institute of Technology replaces; the old Air Corps Tacti-

The War Department has called the attention of the service to the responsibility for maintaining discipline which lies with all officers of the Army—and issued a warning that the personal appearance of military personnel in many cases does not meet the standards of the service.

Calling particular attention to the maintenance of discipline at such times as disorder occurs among military personnel in the absence of military police, responsibilities of all officers are set forth in Section III of War Department Circular 278.

Emphasizing the fact that the appearance of military personnel must be improved without delay, particularly in the case of those traveling on public carriers, Section VI of War Department Circular 275 sets standards for the wearing of the uniform on such occasions.

Following are the texts of the two directives:

"1. Discipline is a function of command; hence it is the responsibility of all officers of the Army of the United States, whether they are on a duty or a leave status, to see that all military personnel present the required neat and soldierly appearance, and to take action in cases of conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline by any military personnel which may take place with their knowledge."

"2. If military police are present or readily available, they shall be called and directed to take the necessary action to restore good order and military discipline. If no military police are readily available, the officer will use such means and personnel as may be available to restore order."

"3. On railroad trains, in the absence of military police, the conductor may be requested to wire ahead to the nearest town where military police are stationed and arrange to have them board the train and take custody of the offender. If the violation is sufficiently serious, the conductor should be requested to stop the train at the first town and turn the offender over to the local police. In all such cases the local police will be advised to telephone collect to the nearest Army post or Army headquarters so that military police may assume custody of the offender as soon as possible."

"4. If the circumstances warrant, and an offense has been committed which endangers the good reputation of the Army, civilian police may be requested to take the offender into custody when no military police are available."

"5. Where military police are not present, the officer will obtain the name, serial number, rank, and station of the offender, and forward this information, together with a statement of the circumstances, to the individual's commanding officer without delay. Where the offender is turned over to the civilian police, the above information will be given to the civilian police for transmittal to the appropriate military authorities with the offender."

VI. UNIFORM. 1. The appearance of some military personnel does not meet the standards of the service, and will be improved without delay. A short time ago, soldiers wearing the uniform of the Army of the United States were instrumental in winning a long and difficult war. The American people have a right to be proud of the members of their armed forces. An untidy or improperly dressed soldier, a man who is not self-disciplined, neither instills nor evokes pride.

2. All personnel will comply strictly with the provisions of AR 600-40 regarding the

Navy Sets Up Training Plan for New Warfare

Officers and enlisted men of the Navy and Marine Corps are to be trained intensively in fields of advanced science in a new training program designed by the Navy to meet demands of "push-button" warfare of the future.

The entire Naval service will be acquainted with practical information on the latest developments in nuclear physics, electronics, jet propulsion, and guided missiles, and officers and enlisted men will receive specialized training to prepare them for duty on guided missile warships and aircraft of new design.

Vice Adm. Louis E. Denfield, Chief of Naval Personnel, in announcing the new training program, declared that the Navy is "placing particular emphasis on the development of programs to train our officers and men for atomic-age warfare."

Post-graduate three-year courses have been set up for Naval officers at the U. S. Naval Academy and other colleges and universities throughout the country. The courses will include studies in nuclear physics and engineering, gas turbines and jet propulsion, physics, electronics, guided missiles and advanced science.

The courses are scheduled to begin at the Naval Academy at intervals during 1947, beginning in January. Certain officers will be selected to specialize in various subjects, and will be sent for further study to other colleges and universities.

Enlisted men, under an expanding technical training program, will be afforded alternate periods of basic and advanced training and of practical experience at sea.

Already, advanced Aviation Machinist's Mates are being taught operation and maintenance of jet engines. Aviation Ordnancemen are given training in rockets and rocket propulsion. Aviation Boatswain's Mates are being indoctrinated in the latest catapult and launching techniques.

The Bureau of Ordnance is filling its guided missile development units and test stations with a nucleus of trained officers, civilians and enlisted personnel who will later become instructors in the larger training program.

Special informative courses on nuclear physics by leading authorities in the field have been compiled and soon will be available to all Naval officers in the form of correspondence courses.

Frequent lectures are given in the Navy Department in order that officers stationed there may be kept posted on developments in scientific research. Lectures on new weapons form an important part of the curriculum at the new National War College.

Vice Adm. Harold G. Bowen, Chief of Naval Research, through whose office much of the training program will be coordinated, stated:

Future national security may well depend upon what the Navy is doing today to raise the level of scientific knowledge, both within its vast organization and throughout the United States in scientific laboratories of universities and industry.

Third A-Bomb Test

Washington Post—“The President's decision to postpone indefinitely the third atomic bomb test, scheduled for next spring, is justified by every consideration of science and common sense. The first two experiments at Bikini showed the world that the scientists know what they are talking about. Thus we can take on faith their appraisal of what an atomic bomb would do if exploded deep under the sea.”

Los Angeles Times—“The news was broken gently in Washington that there probably won't be another atomic bomb test. It was said that the Navy wants the third test, but that a lot of people at Bikini want to go home and that the Navy's budget has been cut. * * * The third Bikini bomb would have tested the effects of a deep-water explosion on submarines. Inasmuch as sea war in the atomic age is expected to see a great enlargement of overseas operations, this test would have perhaps been the more relevant of the three.”

Philadelphia Inquirer—“The air and water experiments with the atom bomb this summer, in addition to facts already known, should have provided enough information to permit scientists to go ahead with atomic power development for peace as well as war.”

Denver Post—“From a strictly military point of view there would seem, even to the layman's mind, fully adequate reasons for dispensing with the third test, not the least of which are the undoubtedly successful results of the experiments already accomplished.”

Cincinnati Times-Star—“The third atomic bomb test (known as Test C, or ‘Charlie’), which had been scheduled for next spring, has been indefinitely postponed by President Truman. An almost suspicious number of reasons is given for the postponement.”

Detroit Free Press—“The postponement of the next A-bomb test is far less significant than the report by American scientists to the United Nations on the cost of putting nuclear energy to work in industry.”

Walter Reed Aids Nurses Fund

The drive to raise funds for the Nurses National Memorial was brilliantly inaugurated in Washington by a Country Fair held at Walter Reed General Hospital 13 and 14 Sept.

President Truman attended and made a brief address to start the nation-wide campaign.

The crowd, gathered to await the arrival of the President, could hear the distant strains of “Happy Birthday” played by the U. S. Marine Band, under the leadership of Capt. F. Santelmann, in honor of the 86th birthday of General John J. Pershing.

The President was escorted to the platform by Brig. Gen. George C. Beach, Jr., Commanding General of the Army Medical Center and Walter Reed.

The President's speech was as follows: “General Beach, distinguished guests, ladies and gentlemen. It is a pleasure for me to be out here today to see this layout, for the purpose for which it is intended, a Nurses' Home and a place for the nurses to be able to enjoy life as well as soldiers enjoy life in their social centers. I want to see it successfully concluded.”

“I am out here today principally to call on the patients in the hospital, to see what they are doing and how they are getting along. I was at Bethesda Naval Hospital yesterday. A wonderful job is being done in the rehabilitation of these veterans. It will also be my privilege to call on my Commanding General in the last war, General Pershing, and to wish him a Happy Birthday. Just twenty-eight years ago today I was following up the St. Mihiel drive with a field artillery unit. I arrived on the ‘time-step.’ I had come all the way on the ‘time-step.’ I tried to keep up, but I never got to fire a shot. I wish that all wars could be won so easily.”

“I hope that the lessons of World War I and World War II will be remembered. I hope that we will profit by these lessons and learn to pray for eternal peace in the whole world. I hope we use the production lines of this country to create a situation that will make us work as hard for peace as we did to win the war, and I am sure that this will come about. Thank you very much.”

Mr. Truman, escorted by General Beach, stopped to pay a visit to General Pershing in the apartment he maintains at Walter Reed.

The opening ceremonies over, people scattered to the various attractions which flaunted their wares through barkers and gay bunting.

The 1946 Ford was given away as a feature of the fair. The winning ticket was drawn by Miss May Pershing, sister of the General, at 6 o'clock on Saturday. Two style shows were given, one at 8:30 Friday evening, opened by Mrs. George C. Beach, Jr., modelling a mink coat, and emphasizing the elegance of the new mode; the other at 3:30 Saturday afternoon, featuring campus and junior styles.

The exhibits were well-organized and strikingly arranged, including a showing of nurses' uniforms from the original to the latest style; a Red Cross display of the various types of service rendered by the organization; a Reconditioning booth; the amputee driving cars; a field unit of a Battalion Aid Station; and a booth showing all types of portable X-ray for a field unit. Probably the most distinguished of the exhibits was the one originally set up at Walter Reed which has been shown in Boston, New York and the Convention of the American Medical Association in San Francisco; the Medical Department Professional Service Schools, Division of Biological Products, displayed colored and lighted plates on biologicals for animals, and comparatively new material on Rh Determination.

Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, The Surgeon General, participated in many of the activities, and was photographed with groups of nurses and patients. Mrs. Kirk has been active in promoting the entire plan for the Memorial. General Kirk and Vice Admiral Ross T. McIntire, Surgeon General, USN, have endorsed the plans.

Many distinguished guests were present on both days. The list of committee-members and sponsors is a battery of imposing names.

The receipts have not been audited, but it is estimated that the total was $21,000.00, while the net profit is expected to be approximately $18,000.00. The plans for the Fair were under the direction of Col. Clifford V. Morgan, Executive Officer of Army Medical Center; it was sponsored by the Officers Club; most of the hospital personnel, including the patients, contributed to the efforts required by the various enterprises; many friends of the hospital in Washington worked tirelessly in assisting in what is felt to be a very successful affair.

The Nurses Memorial is to take the form of a large clubhouse, providing living quarters and a recreation center. It is dedicated to the memory of the women of the Medical Department of the Armed Services who served in World War II. Membership is open to all who have ever been in the Army or Navy service.

Sports Front

We see that a new and vastly improved physical training set-up is the order of the day for the Army. Competitive sports will be stressed in the five hours a week compulsory program, with officers getting right out there and sweating along with the men.

This is a healthy trend. Nobody likes to do calisthenics unless he is slightly deranged. In wartime we all had to take it and like it, because there wasn't time for frills. Now, however, we can do our deep knee bends with the knowledge that when the chicken is finished, we can have dessert. Most men realize that you have to warm up before taking part in any competitive sport, and if the Army wants you to warm up doing push-ups—well, you can still have fun afterwards. For a long time the Army has been trying to discover the way to make men enjoy physical training. This looks like a long step in the right direction. Now if they will only match men for size, so the 5' 4" 120 pounder doesn't find himself pitted against some hulking guard from the Green Bay Packers... *

Navy opens this week against Villanova. For those of you who like comparative scores, here's a chance to use the performances of the two Academies against the Wildcats as a yardstick. Army, meanwhile, tangles with Oklahoma at West Point.

The little matter of deciding the pennant winner in the National League is far from being decided, and probably won't be until the last day of the season. But one thing stands out: win, lose or draw, Leo Durocher, with his handling of the Brooklyn Dodgers this year, is the first man to add anything new to baseball managerial strategy since John McGraw.

Leo manipulates his players in a daring and highly unorthodox manner. In a tight game with the St. Louis Cardinals he used four pitchers to pull it out of the fire, 4-3. It wasn't a case of using pinch-hitters, either. Those pitchers were yanked. Contrast that with the average manager, who is unable to convince himself that a chicken is through till two or three runs have scored.

The Lip doesn't confine his stunts to defensive moves. With the tying run on third against the Giants, he called for a squeeze play with two strikes on the batter. That one would have General Doubleday's ghost clanking its sabre, BUT the run scored and the Brooks went on to win.

Jimmy Dykes not long ago accused Joe McCarthy of being a push-button manager. (Neither of the parties involved is now managing in the big leagues.) The same charge could well be leveled at most field leaders in baseball. In a given situation they will call for a bunt, a steal, a hit-and-run or free swinging, all according to the book. The markedly successful managers are the ones blessed with better than average material plus the ability to handle highly paid, temperamental men. All except Leo. The Dodgers on paper are a second division team, with only the in-field coming up to big league standards. But look at them.

P.S. Leo can handle men too; his system is simple. They do what he tells 'em, or else.

UN, Atomic, Air Posts Announced

Secretary of War Patterson announced 18 Sept. that he will appoint Lt. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton as a member of the Military Liaison Committee of the United States Atomic Energy Commission and Lt. Gen. Harold L. George as Army Air Forces representative on the United Nations Military Staff Committee.

General Brereton, who served on the Evacuation Committee of the Joint Chiefs of Staff for the Bikini atom bomb test is now on the staff of the Secretary of War.

General George, commanding general of the Air Transport Command, will succeed General George C. Kenney in the Atomic Energy Commission post. General Kenney will resume his recent leadership of the Strategic Air Command. Succeeding General George as head of the ATC will be Brig. Gen. Robert M. Webster, now ATC Deputy Commander.

Adm. Richardson Returns

Admiral J. O. Richardson, pre-war Commander-in-Chief of the Pacific Fleet, was to leave Tokyo this week for the United States following completion of his special assignment in connection with preparing statements for war crimes trials.

Court of Inquiry Continues

The Army court of inquiry currently conducting an investigation of the demotion of Col. Lindsay McD. Sylvester, who as a major general commanded the Seventh Armored Division in the European Theater, this week heard the testimony of General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, Chief of Staff, General Omar N. Bradley had previously testified.

The investigation is being held at Colonel Sylvester's request.

Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer is president of the court. Other members are Maj. Gen. James E. Chaney, Maj. Gen. W. H. Morris and Brig. Gen. H. J. Maloney.

Early sessions of the court have been closed, due, according to General Wedemeyer, to the top secret classification of documents involved.

SAC Move Postponed

Headquarters of the Strategic Air Command, which was planned to move to Colorado Springs, Colo., will remain at Andrews Field, Md., for the rest of the fiscal year 1947.

Headquarters of the Fifteenth Air Force, which was planned to be moved from Colorado Springs to Spokane, Wash., will remain at Colorado Springs.

General Carl Spaatz, commanding general of the Army Air Forces, has announced that the change of plan is due to the shortage of transportation funds, the freezing of construction funds and the inadequacy of housing.

QMC to Auction Horses

The Quartermaster Corps announced 19 Sept. that it will sell at auction 200 of its blooded horses, including some of the stock recently imported from Germany. The consignment includes stallions, mares and young horses.

The first sale will be conducted at the Aleshire Quartermaster Depot (Re-mount) at Front Royal, Va., 21 Oct. Other sales, at dates to be announced later, will be held at Fort Robinson, Neb., and Fort Reno, Okla.

Adm. Moreell Retiring

Admiral Ben Moreell (CEC), the Navy's only four-star staff corps admiral, will retire at his own request on 30 Sept. after 29 years of active service. He is now serving as Federal Coal Mines Administrator and Chief of the Material Division of the office of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

As Chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks during the war, Adm. Moreell originated and headed the SeaBees organization. He will be succeeded as Federal Coal Mines Administrator by Capt. Norman H. Collisson, USNR.

AGF Headquarters Move

Army Ground Forces Headquarters now located in the Pentagon, Washington, D. C., will officially open at Fort Monroe, Va., 1 Oct., it was announced 19 Sept. by General Jacob L. Devers, commanding Army Ground Forces.

Army Ground Force sections which will retain offices in the Pentagon are the Officers Assignment Group of G-1 and the Information Section. Maj. Gen. David G. Barr, Assistant Chief of Staff (G-1) will be the senior AGF officer remaining in Washington.

NG Assn. Conference

The 68th annual General Conference of the National Guard Association of the United States opened a four-day session in Buffalo, N. Y., 18 Sept.

During the conference addresses and presentations were made by the Secretary of War; General Courtney Hodges, Commanding the First Army; General Omar Bradley, Veterans Administration; General Jacob L. Devers, Commanding the Army Ground Forces; General Carl Spaatz, Commanding the Army Air Forces; Lt. General LeRoy Lutes, Director of Procurement and Supply of the Army; Lt. General Hugh Drum, formerly commanding the First Army; Lt. General Raymond McLain; Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler, Commanding the 37th Division; Maj. Gen. Butler B. Miltonberger, Chief of the National Guard Bureau; Maj. Gen. Willard S. Paul, G-1 of the War Department; Maj. Gen. Edwin C. Ziegler, New York National Guard; Brig. Gen. Donald B. Adams and Brig. Gen. E. A. Evans of the Reserve Officers Association; Brig. Gen. Ames T. Brown, the Adjutant General of New York; Governor Millard Caldwell of Florida; Chairman of the Conference of Governors; Governor Edward Martin of Pennsylvania; Lt. Governor Joe E. Hanley of New York; Mr. Hanson Baldwin, Military Analyst of the New York Times; Congressman Bernard Kearney of New York; and Mayor Bernard Dowd of Buffalo.

General Devers, speaking before the convention, said:

"It is unfortunate that the legislation authorizing retirement pay for officers of the civilian components failed of passage before the recent adjournment of Congress. The War Department, and the Regular Army, supported the bill in every legitimate way, as a measure of common justice to Guard and Reserve officers. Happily, the measure was not voted down. The House version was passed, but the Senate was unable to act because of the limited time at its disposal before adjournment. There is every prospect, therefore, that the legislation will be reintroduced at the next session of Congress, and speedily enacted."

General Miltonberger, reporting progress of the National Guard program, said: "My recent trips with members of my staff to all Army Headquarters have eliminated many misunderstandings and given the National Guard Bureau a better understanding of the problems in the field, and, gentlemen, let me assure you the field viewpoint is what we will and must have in the National Guard Bureau. There is every indication that our growing pains are lessening day by day."

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey declared that without "some form of universal military training" contemplated expansion of the National Guard was impossible.

Maj. Gen. E. A. Walsh, president of the Association, charged that many Regular Army leaders have attempted to "destroy" the National Guard.

General Hodges said that "the atomic bomb itself may force us to use more men in the defense of the country than ever before."

House Committee Returns

House Military Committee members returned this week from a six-weeks' tour of the Pacific conferred with the Chief of Staff, General Dwight D. Eisenhower, at a luncheon held 19 Sept. in the Pentagon.

The report of the members included a discussion of the progress of demobilization and the closing out of army bases and facilities in the area covered; the information secured on the administration of occupied enemy territory; the condition and morale of our armed forces; and the progress that has been made in the liquidation of surplus property at key overseas points.

Present in Washington and conferring with General Eisenhower were Representatives J. E. Sheridan, Pa., chairman of the sub-committee; R. L. F. Slakes, Fla.; Thomas E. Martin, Iowa; and Dewey Short, Mo. Committee members going direct to their homes were Representatives Melvin Price, Ill.; Paul W. Shafer, Mich.; and J. Leroy Johnson, Calif. Representing the Judiciary Committee of the House was Representative Michael A. Feighan, Ohio.

Leaving Washington on 10 Aug., the committee went as far as Australia by way of Alaska, Hawaii, Tokyo, Shanghai, and the Philippines. The return trip was made by way of Caledonia, the Fiji Islands, Canton Island, and Hawaii.

Representative Short mentioned particularly Alaska, the Aleutians, Guam, Saipan, Iwo Jima, Okinawa, and Hawaii as places where our military strength must be increased. He said, "We must be absolutely impregnable. I think we should build a defense ring around southern Kyushu."

The Congressman recorded a naval officer, an Admiral, as saying to him in Tokyo, "the way things are shaping up, the Japanese will be wearing American uniforms in the next war."

"We might as well be frank about it," Mr. Short said, "he meant war with Russia. Two of the most dangerous spots on the earth today are Trieste and Korea. It's the old story of Russian expansion—divide and destroy."

Military Restoration Needed

Under entirely different auspices, Senator Warren R. Austin, Vt., now United States delegate to the United Nations Security Council, and Maj. Gen. William J. Donovan, former director of the Office of Strategic Services, this week urged the need of redeveloping the military power of the United States.

Asserting that the United States is "helpless in a military way" because of the extent of military demobilization in this country, "except for its secret weapons," Senator Austin urged at a luncheon in his honor in Burlington, Vt., that there should be a restoration of "a well-trained military organization."

Although agreeing that it is explicable that the nation allowed its military forces to become weaker because its people wanted rest and desired members of the armed forces brought home, Senator Austin said, "we must galvanize our sinews into renewed action." For, he continued, "Other nations are looking to see how many divisions are behind us during current negotiations. In all negotiations, the only power now recognized is military. You cannot change the customs of the people of the world in the twinkling of an eye or by a piece of paper."

"Our ultimate aim," the Senator said, "is to make the U. S. so effective that there will be no force except peace forces. Until we reach that state of development we must maintain strong military power."

At a luncheon, in New York City, of Advertising Men's Post, No. 209, American Legion, General Donovan made a plea for the restoration of the wartime intelligence service as "a first line of defense."

Graduate Medical Training

The Bureau of Medicine and Surgery has completed an interesting report on the progress made thus far in the management of the Post-War Graduate Training Program established for the professional advancement of members of the Medical Corps of the U. S. Navy and the U. S. Naval Reserve.

The initial phases of the program have been developed to a point whereby a considerable number of the most desirable and professionally acceptable graduate training courses available to the medical profession have been obtained for the training of active members of the Navy Medical Corps. By 1 Oct. 1946, a total of 87 Naval medical officers will be actively engaged in graduate training in civilian institutions with 35 selectees yet to be assigned to courses commencing during the calendar year 1946.

The results thus far in the acquisition of places for the training of Naval medical officers in civilian institutions have been most gratifying. However, it is proposed to extend this phase of the program until a total of 200 such places are available for the assignment of Naval medical officers to graduate specialty training.

During 1946 to date, 18 medical officers have completed courses of instruction in civilian institutions and 163 have received 6 months or more instruction in various specialties in the Naval Hospitals.

New Naval Hospital

The newest of the Navy's medical centers, the U. S. Naval Hospital at Houston, Texas, was placed in commission in a colorful ceremony on 4 Sept. 1946. A $9,000,000 institution consisting of 37 buildings containing 1,000 beds and covering 118 acres, the hospital embodies the latest and most modern features in design, construction and equipment.

Vice Admiral Ross T. McIntire, (MC), USN, Surgeon General of the Navy and a party of high ranking officers flew from Washington to Houston for the commissioning. In a brief address, Admiral McIntire stated, "We cannot afford to be shortsighted and neglect research just because the shooting is over," and added that the Naval Hospital at Houston would become a research center for plastic surgery and the treatment of tropical diseases. The Navy plans to bring patients to Houston by air from all parts of the country and from overseas installations. Every effort will be made to accommodate hospitalized naval personnel whose homes are in Texas and the surrounding states at the Houston hospital in order to facilitate the visiting of friends and relatives.

In the traditional manner, Rear Adm. J. J. Manning, Chief of the Navy's Bureau of Yards and Docks turned over the hospital to Rear Adm. A. S. Merrill, Commandant of the Eighth Naval District. After placing it in commission, Admiral Merrill then turned the hospital over to Capt. C. W. Brunson, (MC), USN, the commanding officer.

Among the officers from the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery present at the commissioning were: Rear Adm. John Harper, (MC), USN, General Inspector of the Medical Department; Rear Adm. Alfred W. Chandler, (DC), USN, Chief of the Dental Division; Commo. M. D. Willcutts, (MC), USN, Chief of the Personnel Division; Commo. J. C. Adams, (MC), USN, Chief of the Division of Aviation Medicine; Commo. C. L. Andrus, (MC), USN, Chief of the Planning Division and Capt. Nellie J. DeWitt, (NC), USN, Superintendent of the Navy Nurse Corps. Other distinguished guests included Mayor Otis Massey of Houston and Rear Adm. F. L. Conklin, District Medical Officer of the Ninth Naval District.

NG-Draft Policy Outlined

Enlistment in the National Guard does not constitute exemption from induction under Selective Service, the War Department warned this week in a statement which it stated was issued to clarify "certain misconceptions regarding the Position of the National Guard in relation to Selective Service."

War Department Circular 284, 19 Sept., 1945, prohibited enlistment in the National Guard of men within induction age limits, unless they had served honorably in the armed forces subsequent to 16 Sept., 1940, and had been honorably discharged. This circular was changed 20 Aug. 1940, to permit the enlistment of 18-year-olds in the National Guard provided that those enlisted before their 19th birthday would be administratively discharged when called for military service under the Selective Service Act. Registration upon reaching 19th birthday was also required.

A new War Department Circular, approved by the Secretary of War 10 Sept., 1946, permits enlistment in the National Guard of men who are within induction age limits (currently 19-29 years) and who are not within categories for automatic deferment provided that prior to such enlistment they have registered for Selective Service and have been deferred for reasons other than membership in the National Guard. Each man enlisted in the National Guard who is between the ages of 18 and 29 must now sign a statement agreeing to an immediate administrative discharge provided it is certified by his Local Board that he would be processed for induction were it not for enlistment in the National Guard.

Furlough Travel Rates

Personnel of the Army and Navy Nurse Corps, WACs and Women's Reserve of the Navy and Marine Corps must travel in uniform if they wish to receive the benefits of the furlough rates. Military personnel in civilian clothes will not be given reduced rates.

Medical Refresher Courses

Refresher courses are being offered officers of the Army Medical Corps who are eligible for separation under current criteria.

The courses are authorized for officers who are to be assigned to professional duty. Those arriving at reception stations from overseas and separation centers are being apprised of the opportunity to request assignment to this in-service professional training. Officers will not be recalled to active duty from terminal leave for the training however.

The training is given in general and regional hospitals selected by The Surgeon General. Requests for the training should be submitted through channels to the Surgeon General.

AUS Promotions

No officer will be recommended for promotion unless under his current category statement he has a minimum of six months to serve subsequent to the date of initiation of promotion recommendation, Change 1 to AR 605-12, relating to temporary promotions in the Army of the United States, states.

Exceptions are made in the case of Medical Department officers held in service beyond the date they would be eligible for discharge and officers eligible for promotion under the provisions for returned prisoners of war.

Gen. Eisenhower's Tour

General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, Chief of Staff, expects to leave on his inspection tour of Army installations in Europe the last of this week or the first of next.

The tour will take from three weeks to a month. Final decision on the exact itinerary has not been made, the War Department states.

Staff Changes in USFET

Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress, at present USFET Inspector General, will replace Brig. Gen. Edwin L. Sibert as Assistant Chief of Staff, G-2, USFET, it was announced by Headquarters, U. S. Forces, European Theater. The IG position left open by General Burress, will be filled by Maj. Gen. Edwin P. Parker, Jr., now CG of the Third Infantry Division. General Sibert will return to the U. S.

Asks Wallace Resignation

It was announced at the White House yesterday that President Truman has asked Secretary of Commerce Wallace to resign from the Cabinet.

Promotion of Lt. Cols.

It is understood that the list of 345 lieutenant colonels of the Regular Army whose nominations for promotion to colonel were held up in the Senate because of inclusion therein of an officer involved in the Litchfield court martial will not be resubmitted to the next Congress.

Instead, it is believed in Washington that the War Department will hold up the nominations until a new law is enacted instituting a system of selection from lieutenant colonel to colonel.

Col. Armstrong Heads School

Col. Harry G. Armstrong, 47-year old veteran of World Wars I and II and the holder of the Collier Trophy, has assumed command of the School of Aviation Medicine at Randolph Field, Tex., following the retirement of Brig. Gen. Eugen G. Reinartz.

Heads Officers

Brig. Gen. B. M. Hovey, Commanding General of Bolling Field in Washington, D. C., has announced the election of Col. Robert Windeck Hall as President of the Bolling Field Officers' Mess, succeeding Lt. Col. John H. King, Jr.

Adm. McCrea Promoted

Rear Adm. John L. McCrea, USN, has been named Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Administration and advanced to vice admiral, the Navy Department announced 19 Sept.

Commissions in Sanitary Corps

Authorized for this month is a procurement objective of 100 Sanitary Corps officers. Enlisted men and civilians with appropriate background and training may now receive direct commissions in the Sanitary Corps of the Army Medical Department.

Upon recommendation of their commanding officers qualified enlisted personnel may be commissioned directly in the Army of the United States.

Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, The Surgeon General, stated that this program will not conflict with Officer Candidate School graduates as the assignments of men receiving direct commissions will be of a highly specialized nature.

Qualifications for commissioning for both civilian and enlisted personnel are:

1. Bachelor's degree with an appropriate science major from an approved college or university.

2. A minimum of two years of appropriate experience obtained in the particular field in which the applicant is qualified and while in the employ of a municipality, an approved hospital, an approved college or university, or a governmental or approved private agency.

3. Qualified enlisted personnel, upon recommendation of their commanding officers, may be considered for a commission after completing one year of specialized activity in the Army, in lieu of 2 years' experience.

4. Advanced degree of M.S. or Ph. D. will be considered if the applicant does not have sufficient experience qualifications.

Wear of Dress Uniform

In preparation for the eventual resumption of the blue dress uniform in the Army, the War Department, in Section VII of Circular 274, rescinds a 1944 circular banning the blues for the duration of the war and six months and substitutes the following sentence:

"No blue dress uniform will be worn except as may be specifically authorized and prescribed by the War Department."

The summer coat for officers and the white dress are optional with the officer and may be worn as heretofore.

Reserve Officers to Meet

A meeting of all Reserve Officers in the Military District of Washington will be held in the Auditorium of the Department of Interior Building at 18th and C Streets N. W. at 8:00 P. M., Monday, 23 Sept.

The 1-2-3 of paper work for surplus property disposal

Expedite it with Mimeograph die-impressed stencils

It's as simple and easy as that. You don't have to wait for preprinted forms. One proofreading is enough, for all copies are identical. And all copies are easy to read, clear, black-and-white—won't fade even with hard handling.

Order your supply by writing A. B. Dick Company, 720 West Jackson Boulevard, Chicago 6, Ill.

A single writing gives you as many copies as you need of surplus property disposal papers—that's the big speed-up provided by Mimeograph die-impressed stencils.

Already die-impressed into Mimeograph stencils are the mandatory forms specified in War Assets Administration directives.

All your typists do is add the fill-in material by typewriter.

Then the completed form and variable information are produced together in one operation on the Mimeograph duplicator.

These standard SPB and WAA forms are now available in Mimeograph Die-Impressed Stencils

SPB-1	Declaration of Surplus Personal Property to Disposal Agency
SPB-1	Continuation Sheet
SPB-1.1	Adjustment of Prior Declaration of Surplus Personal Property
SPB-1.1	Continuation Sheet
SPB-1.2	Declaration of Surplus Personal Property to Disposal Agency
SPB-1.3	Listing Sheet
WAA-1001.2	Declaration of Surplus Personal Property to Disposal Agency
WAA-1001.3	Listing Sheet

MIMEOGRAPH is the trade-mark of A. B. Dick Company, Chicago, registered in the U. S. Patent Office.

Navy Language Courses

Billets are available for qualified officers of the Regular Navy for linguistic courses in the Naval Intelligence School, located at the Anacostia, D. C. Receiving Station. The school will offer intensive courses in Russian, Japanese, Chinese, Spanish, French, German, Italian, and Portuguese.

Successful completion of the course is designed to qualify the students as translators and interpreters of the language studied. Daily use of the language in extracurricular activities, including newspapers, broadcasts, and movies, is an essential part of the instruction.

The course in Chinese will last 18 months, Japanese 14 months, Russian and German 6 months, Italian and Portuguese 4 months, Spanish and French 3 months. Each course calls for a minimum of four and a half hour of classroom instruction daily, five days a week.

All applicants must have completed a minimum of two and a half years of college or U. S. Naval Academy work. From among those who meet this college requirement, preference will be given to two categories:

(a) Applicants whose college record is of high honor standing and who show evidence of special linguistic ability.

(b) Applicants who have had no previous language study but whose general college grades are of high honor quality.

Age requirements are from 19 to 29, inclusive, and no exceptions will be made. Classes begin monthly, and students should specify language preference.

Adm. Connolly to Europe

Vice Admiral Richard L. Connolly has been ordered to relieve Admiral Henry Kent Hewitt as Commander of U. S. Naval Forces in Europe and Commander of the Twelfth Fleet, and the 27,000-ton carrier USS Randolph will be assigned temporary to that command, reporting in the Mediterranean area about 1 Nov.

The change in command is to be effective on or about 23 Sept. Vice Admiral Connolly will be advanced to the rank

Navy Enlisted Ratings

New requirements for service, sea duty, and marks have been ordered by the Chief of Naval Personnel for advancements in rating of Navy enlisted men.

The following requirements are prescribed:

Pay Grade	SERVICE REQUIREMENTS Present Pay Grade	MARKS REQUIREMENTS
		Proficiency in rating	Conduct
7 to 6 (to S2c)	No specified time for advancements effected on completion of recruit training by Tra-Cens; otherwise 4 mos. naval service.	None	None
6 to 5 (to S1c)	6 mos.	No mark less than 2.5 for preceding 6 mos. and not less than 3.5 for quarter preceding advancement.	No mark less than 2.5 for preceding 6 mos. and an average of not less than 3.25 for 6 mos. preceding advancement.
5 to 4 (to PO3c)	6 mos.	Same as above.	No mark less than 3.0 for preceding 6 mos. and an average of not less than 3.5 for 6 mos. preceding advancement.
4 to 3 (to PO2c)	12 mos.	No mark less than 3.0 for preceding 12 mos. and an average of not less than 3.5 for 12 mos. preceding advancement.	Same as above, except time is 24 mos.
3 to 2 (to PO1c)	12 mos. and 36 mos. total active service. S-a Duty of at least 6 mos. in pay grades 3 and/or 4.	Same as above.	Same as above
2 to 1A (to CPO-AA)	36 mos. Sea Duty of at least 12 mos. in Pay Grade 2.	Same as above, except time is 24 mos.	Same as above, except time is 24 mos.
1A to 1 (to CPO-PA)	12 mos. Sea Duty of 12 mos. in Pay Grade 1A.	As prescribed in Art. 5111 of Bureau of Naval Personnel Manual, part D.

of Admiral when he assumes his new duties. In addition to his new duty, he will continue his present assignment as Naval advisor to the Secretary of State at the Paris Peace Conference and U. S. Naval advisor to the Council of Foreign Ministers during the period of the Peace Conference. He will also be U. S. Naval advisor to the European Advisory Commission in London.

When relieved of his present duty, Admiral Hewitt will report to the Naval War College, Newport, R. I., as advisor to Admiral Raymond A. Spruance.

The transfer of the Randolph to Europe is incident to the "policy of rotating ships of the Atlantic Fleet between the Western Atlantic and the Eastern Atlantic and Mediterranean," the Navy stated. The light cruiser USS Spokane will leave the Western Atlantic in early October for duty in European waters, and the light cruiser USS Little Rock is scheduled to leave the Mediterranean this week for the United States.

The Randolph will complete this year's Midshipmen's cruise on her return to Annapolis 27 Sept., and is scheduled to take 100 high school science students on a brief trip.

The 45,000-ton USS Franklin D. Roosevelt will complete a six-week Mediterranean cruise next week, being scheduled to arrive at Casablanca on 24 Sept. The Navy said it has not been decided when she will return to the United States.

Navy Travel Curtailed

Orders to Naval officers authorizing repeated travel orders will be referred to the Bureau of Naval Personnel for approval after 15 Oct., and repeated travel will then be authorized only to officers with special duties requiring it.

Alnay 514 emphasizes that this curtailment of travel is necessary in order that funds appropriated for naval officer travel may be made to suffice for the remainder of the fiscal year.

U. S. COAST GUARD

TEMPORARY officers whose active service is terminated with their separation may apply within 60 days after discharge for commissions in the Coast Guard Reserve.

If granted, and the services of the officer were satisfactory, he will be tendered an appointment in the Reserve in the highest temporary rank held during the war.

As a matter of policy, and while the Temporary Promotion Act is in effect, enlisted personnel on active duty will not be considered eligible for holding Reserve commissions or warrants while also serving in an active duty enlisted status. If their services on active duty in commissioned or warrant grade are required, they will be tendered temporary rather than Reserve appointments.

"Established in obedience to an insistent demand for an official organ for members of the American Defense and those concerned with it, The Army and Navy Journal will be published in the interest of no party; it will be controlled by no clique. Its independence will be absolute. Its interest will be directed solely to the inculcation of sound military ideas and to the elevation of the public service in all its departments."—From Vol. 1, No. 1, of the Army and Navy Journal, published August 29, 1863.

OUR PRIORITY LIST

- Maintenance in accordance with professional studies of our national needs and international commitments, of Regular Establishments organized and trained to utilize and employ materials of war developed by continuing scientific research, and backed by Industry and Labor kept intimately familiar with the manufacture of such materials.
- Reconstruction of National Guard and Reserve components federally aided and encouraged to maximum efficiency, and effectively coordinated with the Regular Services, and universal military training.
- All personnel in active and retired pay and allowances to meet risen costs so as to enable maintenance of American Standards of Housing and protection of families from reductions in income.
- Institution of orderly promotion systems in the Regular Establishments with recognition of war service and war ranks to prevent stagnation, and to insure the maintenance of high professional standards.
- Continuance and expansion of service schools, including the Army and Navy Staff College, attendance of which shall be open to National Guard and Reserve officers.
- Establishment and retirement benefits for former enlisted personnel and warrant officers who served as commissioners or others during the war.
- Grant of the same rights and benefits to those who elect to remain in the Services as will be enjoyed by the discharged veterans.
- Upward revision of pension scales to insure Service widows and dependents a living income.
- Compensation for Service personnel who use privately owned automobiles on government business.
- Maintenance of stock piles of strategic materials.

HERE is a school of military thinking in our Services as far apart as the poles from that alleged by Commerce Secretary Wallace in his letter of 23 July to the President. Rather than advocating what he described as a "preventive war"—an attack on Russia before that formidable nation has the atomic bomb—our staff studies are directed solely toward the realization of a program of defense which will enable us to discharge the obligations imposed upon us by the war, and to prevent another Pearl Harbor and our involvement in a third global conflict. Otherwise, the War Department would not continue to demobilize our Army—the Navy to lay-up our ships, and the Air to dispose of so many of our planes. While comparatively little information has passed to us through the Soviet iron curtain, we are aware of her continued strength, her frantic research, her aggressive actions in violation of the Yalta and Potsdam agreements, of firing upon our planes in Austria, the killing of American soldiers by her satellite Yugoslavia, her disregard of our protest and requests for explanation, the "incident" occurring in Korea, and the arms she has given to the so-called Chinese Reds, the military spying in which she is engaged, and, above all, the fervor with which Communism is being pressed throughout the world, including the whole of the Western Hemisphere. With all these things, we have been patient, a fact of which the appeasing and pacifist Wallace seems as ignorant as is his knowledge of Russian aggression under the Czars and under Stalin, for example, in the cases of Poland, Finland and the Balkan States when the Soviets were an ally of Germany. Charged with the responsibility of defending American interests against attack, our staffs would be criminally guilty if they failed in the face of what Russia is doing, to call upon Congress for $13 billion, to ascertain the effects of atomic bomb explosion upon our shore defenses and ships, to supply Central and South America in accordance with the Chapultepec agreement, with arms to repel an invasion that would enable the establishment of bases for attack upon us, to produce better planes and to secure strategic overseas bases for our use. With appalling failure to realize the lessons of World Wars I and II, Mr. Wallace scorns the notion of "predominance of force," something America does not want, and would have the United States appear as Chamberlain sought to do at Munich, and to divide the world into spheres of influence, thus abandoning the Roosevelt Atlantic Charter and our interest in the Middle East, the Pacific and Far East. Holding the views he does, based upon theoretical assumptions and obvious ignorance of history and misinterpretation of current trends, Mr. Wallace should be dismissed from the Cabinet, if only on the grounds of his neglect to appreciate the wisdom of the old American slogan that politics end at the water's edge, a fact which President Truman recognized when he named a Republican as a member of our Peace Mission. Meanwhile, as we have stated, our Staffs will continue to pursue their studies solely in order to carry out our obligations and to provide for our defense, and through the very existence of such provisions, restrain any aggressor nation from precipitating another world war.

THE Country Fair given at Walter Reed General Hospital last week end, to which President Truman graciously lent his presence and support, served to focus national attention on the forthcoming drive for funds for the Nurses National Memorial. The Fair, sponsored by the Officers' Club at the Army Medical Center, raised approximately $18,000 toward the fund to construct a memorial building to be erected in Washington, D. C., as a social center for the benefit of the medical servicewomen of all the Armed Forces. It is estimated that $2,500,000 will be needed to complete the project and to that end an intensified drive will be held between 17 November and 31 December. President Truman, in his address opening the Walter Reed Fair, said, "I want to see it successfully completed." All members of the Services, too, want to see it successfully completed, for they know of the fine work performed by the women of the medical services in all the theaters of war as well as at home. The project has been endorsed by the Surgeons General of the Army and Navy and is supported by a large group of prominent citizens. Mrs. Truman is chairman of the Sponsors and Mrs. Norman T. Kirk, wife of the Surgeon General of the Army and herself a nurse who served in World War I, together with Mrs. Ross T. McIntire, wife of the Surgeon General of the Navy, are co-chairmen. The Memorial is planned as a center which the 100,000 present and former members of the medical service corps may use as their headquarters in Washington. Provision will be made for kitchen and dining room facilities as well as sleeping accommodations for at least 300 women. It will be equipped as a service club and temporary residence, as well as a social center for service nurses. The thousands of nurses who must pass through Washington need a social center and a temporary residence, a place where they can meet in their own building. Walter Reed is to be complimented for its substantial contribution to the fund. We urge that others lay their plans now for activities which will swell the fund so that the drive which will start in November may be short lived and successful.

Adolescence

The little child was sitting demurely on the couch, watching her mother smoke a cigarette. Her little nose wrinkled and in her pale blue eyes was an expression of childish disillusionment. Finally, unable to stand it any longer, she burst out in her quavering falsetto: "Mother, when are you going to learn to inhale?"

Hoist Away

A tired business man arrived home. The cook had left without giving notice that morning. He had lost a lot of money on the stock market. His wife had left a farewell note. His car had burned up that day. He knew a shot would end his troubles. So he opened the bottle and took one.

Camouflaged

An inebriate dreaded the tongue-lashing from his wife that invariably accompanied his return home in the early morning hours. So, after a night of tippling, he returned home, went to the kitchen, tied a rope about his waist, and tied skillets, pots, and pans to the rope in such a manner that they dragged behind him as he walked. Then he took off his shoes and stole softly upstairs.

"She'll never hear me in this infernal din," he whispered to himself as he crept toward the bedroom.

C.G.H.—The book about which you inquired is the Officer's Manual, by Col. James A. Moss, published by George Banister, Manasha, Wisc.

R.V.H.—Since the enactment of Public Law 720 which amends Public Law 190 (20 year retirement) it is no longer necessary for a soldier to serve six months in the grade of master sergeant after re-enlistment in order to receive the retired pay of that grade when retired.

J.M.—Under the provisions of Public Law 190 you may count all active Federal service, including your service in the Navy, toward your 20 year retirement from the Army.

K.W.R.—There is no regulation which would make it possible for men who were prisoners of war to collect a greater amount of accumulated leave than the maximum amount of 120 days authorized for other service personnel. There is no regulation pertaining to promotions which would apply under the circumstances given in your letter.

The vast air redeployment of Chinese armies into Japanese-occupied areas of Eastern China by the United States AAF began 6 Sept. The lift, which involves the transport of 80,000 Chinese soldiers and their equipment, is the largest and most complex ever to be undertaken in the India-Burma or China Theaters.

50 Years Ago

There is already some discussion among Army and Navy officers over the prospects of the rule being rescinded prohibiting Annapolis and West Point encountering one another in football. Many officers of both services approve of the two schools contesting annually in both football and baseball, if the discipline and studies were not interfered with by the time necessary to practice.

80 Years Ago

Although peace has been declared between the Powers engaged in the late European war, and the huge armies that a few weeks ago met on sanguinary fields are now returning to their homes to be in great part disbanded, a feeling of insecurity and suspicion still prevails in Europe. The peace is not trusted.

AAF Sets 27 Records in 1946

A summary of the current Army Air Forces program to increase present records for speed, altitude and duration discloses that 22 international and five United States national aviation records already have been established by the AAF during 1946. A sixth national record was broken last December.

Using standard AAF equipment, the Air Forces has been concentrating since December, 1945, on shattering speed, altitude and endurance records. This program will be continued until the United States holds every important aviation record possible to attain with present equipment, AAF headquarters announced in releasing the summary.

The record flights were made by four types of aircraft: B-29A, P-80A, XA-26F, and R-5A.

Navy Flight Training

Requests for flight training are desired from commissioned officers of the line of the Regular Navy who meet qualifications prescribed in BuPers C/L 87-46.

Among requirements in that letter are a minimum age of 26, five semesters of college, and one year of sea or foreign service duty.

Applications should be submitted in form specified in an enclosure to the circular letter.

Gen. Spaatz Visits Mexico

General Carl Spaatz, commanding general of the Army Air Forces, left Washington 14 Sept. for Mexico City, where he is visiting General de Brigada Gustavo A. Salinas Camina, Mexican Air Force chief.

AAF Headquarters said the visit was to return a courtesy call made recently to Washington by the Mexican air commander.

General Spaatz is scheduled to return to Washington on or about 19 Sept.

Separate Air Arm

Maj. Gen. Fred L. Anderson, Assistant Chief of Air Staff-Personnel, speaking at the Prisoner of War Recognition Dinner in the Officers Dining Room of the Pentagon, Washington, D. C., 16 Sept., urged maintenance of an Air Force in-being capable of the task of national defense.

"The Air Forces believe," General Anderson said, "that a separate Air Arm under a Single Department of Defense is the only logical solution."

"The Air Force believes in a great Navy; a great Ground Force," he continued, "for we know that in foreseeable time, wars will end with a man, with a gun and a knife, moving on foot where he is not wanted. But we must not submit to a revival of the campaign of hitching and restraining air power."

Pearl Harbor Report

The Japanese Government was ordered 6 Sept. to deliver to the International Prosecution Section of SCAP the top secret operation orders of the Japanese Combined Fleet, and all other operational plans or orders relating to the Pearl Harbor attack.

Specifically, the order demands the Japanese produce Orders No. 1, 5 Nov. 1941; No. 3, sometime in Nov. 1941; Striking Force Operation Order No. 1, 10 Nov. 1941; Japanese Army-Navy Central Headquarters Agreement, believed to have been issued in Oct., 1941; Imperial Headquarters Navy Staff Section Order No. 1, 5 Nov. 1941 from Chief of Naval General Staff Nagano, to the Commander-in-Chief, Combined Fleet, Admiral Yamamoto.

Also wanted are all secret radio messages from the Japanese Navy and Foreign Office in Tokyo to the Japanese Consul General at Honolulu for 90 days prior to 7 Dec. 1941, regarding the location and movement of United States vessels in Hawaiian waters.

The records of radio messages might indicate whether or not a "winds execute" message was ever transmitted as notice of a formal break between Japan and the United States. Evidence studied thus far has failed to show that such a message was sent.

RESPONSIBILITIES IN WASHINGTON

FOLLOWING is a continuation from last week's issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL of vital portions of the report of the Joint Congressional Committee on the Investigation of the Pearl Harbor attack. This section treats with Responsibilities in Washington.

Conclusions With Respect to Intelligence Available in Washington Which Was Not Supplied Hawaii

Both Admiral Kimmel and General Short have complained that they were wrongfully deprived of intelligence available to Washington through the Magic which would have altered completely their estimate of the situation and would have resulted, if it had been supplied them, in a proper alert and appropriate dispositions consistent with an adequate defense of the Hawaiian coastal frontier.

In the last analysis, however, there are only four messages or groups of messages which the commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet and the commanding general of the Hawaiian Department contend pointed to Pearl Harbor as a likely place of attack; i.e., the harbor berthing plan and related dispatches, the deadline messages, the dispatches which indicated the fraudulent nature of Japanese negotiations after 28 November, and the dispatch specifying 1 p.m., 7 December, as the time for delivery of the Japanese memorandum to the Secretary of State.

The burden of the statements of both Admiral Kimmel and General Short to the committee is that Washington withheld vital information from them. In fact, Admiral Kimmel has charged that the Navy Department's handling of Magic constituted an affirmative misrepresentation. On the basis of the evidence before the committee, this charge is without foundation in fact.

FINGERPRINTING

Fingerprinting, Identification, Scientific Crime Detection, Criminology, Forensic Medicine, For Responsible Men & Women. APPROVED FOR VETERAN TRAINING. Duration on Request. New Term October 28. DR. W. RIGG BRONNER, Director PENNA. INSTITUTE OF CRIMINOLOGY 481 WALNUT ST. PHILA. 8, PA.

Both Hawaiian commanders all but ignore the fact that they are properly chargeable with possessing far more vital intelligence, indicating an attack on Hawaii than was in the hands of anyone in the War or Navy Departments. They had, among other things, correspondence with Washington and plans revealing the possible dangers of air attack, the warning dispatches, the code-destruction intelligence, radio intelligence concerning the "lost" Japanese carriers, the Mori call, the report of sighting and subsequent attack on a Japanese submarine in close proximity to Pearl Harbor, and radar detection of the Japanese raiding force over 130 miles from Oahu on the morning of 7 December. General Short assumed the Navy was conducting distant reconnaissance. Admiral Kimmel assumed that the Army would alert its aircraft warning service, antiaircraft guns, and fighter planes. From these assumptions and the estimate and action taken on the basis of information available to them, it is problematical as to what steps would have been taken by the Hawaiian commanders had they received all of the intelligence which they contend was withheld from them.

Estimate of the Situation in Washington

The evidence reflects that virtually everyone in Washington was surprised Japan struck Pearl Harbor at the time she did. Among the reasons for this conclusion was the apparent Japanese purpose to move toward the south—the Philippines, Thailand, the Kra Peninsula; and the feeling that Hawaii was a near-impenetrable fortress that Japan would not incur the dangers of attacking. The latter consideration necessarily contemplated that Hawaii was alert and that the enemy would be met with the full weight of Army and Navy power provided for defense. It is apparent, however, that an attack on the fleet by Japan at some time was regarded as a distinct possibility. The warning messages sent the Hawaiian commanders contained orders requiring defensive measures against this possibility. Admiral Turner, Director of War Plans in the Navy Department, is the only officer in Washington in the higher echelons who indicated a strong belief that Hawaii would be attacked—he testified that he regarded such an attack as a "50-50 chance."

The thoughts expressed by Admiral Turner characterized the feelings of all the ranking officers of the War and Navy Departments: that the Hawaiian commanders had been adequately alerted to all contingencies. Admiral Stark stated, "We considered we had fully alerted them (referring to the 'war warning' of 27 November) with the directives which were given both by the Army and by ourselves  We felt we were fully alerted. Our plans were ready, if war broke out, in all theaters." General Marshall said, "In our opinion, the commanders had been alerted." As expressed by Mr. Stimson:

We assumed that when he (General Short) had been warned that hostile action was possible at any moment, it would not be necessary to repeat that warning over and over again during the ensuing days. The fact was of course that General Short did receive, not only from Washington but from other sources, repeated intelligence of the impending crisis.

Captain McCollum, who had suggested (not knowing the "war warning" had been sent) an additional warning dispatch, stated in referring to the dispatch sent Admiral Kimmel on 27 November:

It does not come in the life of most naval officers to receive or see a message containing such words and my personal feeling is that a message containing the information "This is a war warning," indicated clearly that the Department expected a war to break out there at any moment from then on.

* * * I think that a commander to whom such a message as that is addressed must assume that war is going to break out over his forces and take the steps necessary to cover it.

The consummate confidence that field commanders were adequately alert on the basis of dispatches sent them is manifested by the reluctance of Admiral Stark to dispatch a message based on the "one o'clock intercept." As stated by General Marshall: "I asked him if he had read the final message referring to one o'clock. He stated that he had, and I proposed an immediate message to all theaters concerned. Admiral Stark hesitated, because he said (he) had alerted them all and he was afraid of confusing them further."

As indicated, the record reflects the judgment of responsible officers in both the War and Navy Departments that they had fully and adequately alerted our military outposts before 7 December. We believe that Admiral Kimmel and General Short received sufficient information to justify the expectation that they would be fully alert to the implications of their military responsibilities in Hawaii. In this connection it is to be noted that all other outpost commanders, receiving the warning messages of 27 November in substantially the same form as did Admiral Kimmel and General Short, took full and ample measures to effect a state of readiness commensurate with the fact that war was imminent. Hawaii was the only outpost that failed to institute a proper alert.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Foreign Affairs—General of the Army Eisenhower recently stated that it was impossible for him to estimate the requirements of the Army and the Air Corps until he was advised of the policy of the United States as defined by the President and the Congress. Fleet Admiral Nimitz is in the like situation with respect to the Navy and its air arm. Therefore, the action of Commerce Secretary Wallace in expressing at a political meeting in Madison Square Garden, New York, and in a letter to the President, his views in support of the appeasement of Russia as opposed to the tougher policy outlined by the Secretary of State at Stuttgart, Germany, reveals the dilemma in which the Chief of Staff and the Chief of Naval Operations are placed. Calling for strength is the policy of Mr. Byrnes with respect to Germany, Poland and the Balkan States, his assertion that our occupation forces would remain in Europe for an indefinite period, the demonstration made by our European squadron in the Eastern Mediterranean, and the course being followed by General of the Army MacArthur in Japan and Korea. Leading to weakness and acceptance of Russian expansion are the proposals of Mr. Wallace. Those proposals include a large reduction in military expenditures, cessation of our armament of the Western Hemisphere, and the maintenance and acquisition of overseas bases; agreement to disclose the know-how of the manufacture of the atomic bomb, and eventually the destruction of those we have, and abandonment of our general support of the British Empire. There are other ideas advanced by Mr. Wallace in order to remove what he described as Russian distrust of us, including abandonment of our policy to democratize the states surrounding Russia, which he observed cannot be democratized, and to permit such states to be "friendly neighbors" of that country, cessation of resistance to Russian ambition to gain warm water ports and to control the Dardanelles, cooperation with Russia in the Middle East; the grant to her of a commercial loan on the same basis as that given to the United Kingdom, and negotiation of a treaty with her for trade cooperation. In other words, Mr. Wallace wants us to scrap our current policy which started with the appeasement he favors and got precisely nowhere as the Paris conference has shown. As President Truman was in possession of Mr. Wallace's views as far back as 23 July and disregarded them in favor of the policy laid down at Stuttgart by Secretary Byrnes, and the Atomic Energy proposal of Mr. Baruch, it follows that the War and Navy Departments moved accordingly. Now, after first approving the Wallace Madison Square Garden speech, and then stating publicly that the approval was limited to the "right" of the Secretary to utter his views, with the American bargaining power at Paris weakened, and the Russian government taking advantage of the confusion in our Cabinet, it is incumbent upon the President to state clearly what our policy will be so that our military leaders will know what and how to plan.

The manner in which a firm and wise American policy can be carried out by a resolute administrator, even against immense difficulties, was indicated this week in the report of our present position in Austria, as made by General Mark W. Clark, in Washington for a short time before returning to Vienna. He recited with great simplicity some of the difficulties inherent in the situation. His headquarters are in Vienna which is surrounded by the Russian zone of eastern Austria, and access to the American zone itself is through a narrow corridor undistinguishable from the contiguous Russian control. General Clark now has about 15,000 troops for all of north-central Austria, which is the American zone, this being about the same as the French garrison in western Austria, half the British garrison in south-central Austria, and one-fifth the Russian garrison in the east. The American zone is shut off from the north bank of the Danube, which is a grave handicap, and also from contact with Czechoslovakia with which trade would naturally make its way. In effect, although not in the official design, it also is cut off from both the food and the petroleum of the bread-basket and oil area which Russia controls. But American firmness and good sense and voluntary aid to the Austrians have combined to build up good feeling for America and to make it imperative, in General Clark's view, that despite discouragements we retain that present thin bridgehead into eastern Europe. "We try to adjust our differences with the Soviets, and we will continue until we succeed," he said with admirable calm. He noted regretfully the Soviet refusal to share food with the rest of Austria, or even petroleum, and the embarrassment which this is causing UNRRA in its closing days. The need which General Clark sees is for early American aid to Austria, whose denazification is complete and whose desire for self-government is suggested by votes in which Communists recorded less than 10 per cent. Early financial aid (Britain and France participating) he finds necessary, unless we are prepared to abandon this small nation and permit it to drift, for support, into an eastward political dependency. The loan which he suggests would be partly to meet indisputable consumption needs over the months when UNRRA will have ceased to operate; more largely it would be for the restoration of cropland and transport and tools, to permit the slow rebuilding of an independent Austrian economy. General Clark indicates a complete willingness to use part of this fund to buy needed petroleum which Russia has impounded, unless it be cheaper to send our own petroleum in. He made it clear that he continues and will continue to make every effort to get along with the Russian authorities in Austria, but that most of his difficulties stem from causes far beyond the authority of the local administrators and curable only by the peace conference or by highest echelons of government. Ninety per cent of all trouble, he observes, has to do with reparations and, hence, with high authority's failure to define what are those "German assets" subject to seizure; the Russians declared that anything the Nazis took were in that category, even including Austria's railroads, industries, farmland, and the like, whereas our own rules limit these things to items which were German before the anschluss. Obviously, this difference is a major matter which can be cured only by very high authority, and with which the military commanders must make out by great tact, such as General Clark has shown. It is equally obvious that, however admirable his tact and firmness, Washington has a responsibility to display equal tact and firmness—and cabinet unity.

At a special ceremony held in the Pentagon Bidg. 16 Sept., Maj. Gen. Herbert L. Earnest, Asst. Chief of Staff, G-3, Hqs., AGF, presented the Oak Leaf Cluster to the Legion of Merit to Col. M. B. Raymond in recognition of outstanding services rendered from September, 1945 to February, 1946.

Bureau of Yards and Docks—A shock absorbing block has been designed by the Bureau of Yards and Docks for use in countering the effect of rough water in crudling a ship in a floating drydock.

The block consists of a steel plate or deck member attached to the deck, from which rises a reinforced upright pedestal to which is attached a steel ram. This ram is surrounded by a circular and buoyant steel ring, covered in the center by a perforated steel plate. Because of the spherical sides of the ram, this buoyant ring can tilt in any direction up to 27 degrees.

The shock-absorbing block, the action of which is somewhat similar to that of a hydraulic ram, was developed to better enable the ship repair forces to handle damaged ships in advance base area operations in wartime when it is not always possible to locate the floating drydocks where operating conditions are ideal as regards exposure to wind and waves.

It is entirely possible that this shock-absorbing block in an improved form will be standard equipment on floating drydocks for advance base use in the near future.

Integration of Regular Army Officers—The War Department officially announced this week that approximately 70,000 applicants for Regular Army commissions under the first integration program earlier this year are being notified they are under consideration for additional vacancies existing under Congressional action authorizing an increase in the Regular Army officer strength from 25,000 to 50,000.

Additional applications for commissions will be accepted on a date to be announced later. Those who qualify under a processing program similar to that employed to select an initial increment of 9,813 officers late in July will be added to the consideration list and given equal opportunity on the basis of qualification with those already listed.

The program will be gotten under way by 15 Oct., it is expected, although machinery for accepting the additional applications is not yet functioning.

Original applicants, not among the initial 9,813 given Regular Army commissions, may assume that they are on the consideration lists unless they have been formally notified by the War Department to the contrary. Those who have been notified of rejection will not be eligible. Others will be permitted to restate their interest in being commissioned in the Regular Army and to change their choice of branches, if they so desire, before the integration of the 25,000 new Regular officers is begun, regardless of whether they are still on active duty or have reverted to civilian status.

Tentative plans for the integration of these officers call for appointments to be made in four increments, in January, May, September and December, 1947. It is anticipated that greater emphasis will be given to commissioning officers in the ranks of captain and major than was given in the first integration.

National Guard—The Chief of the National Guard Bureau has issued a directive stating that the authority for enlisting men in the post-war National Guard for a two-year period, as outlined in Section IV, paragraph B 1d, Approved War Department Policies Relating to Postwar National Guard, is in conflict with the law and until certain amendments to Section 69, National Defense Act, as amended, are made, enlistments in the National Guard will be limited to: (a) Three years for initial enlistments. (b) One or three years for reenlistments. All two year enlistments submitted before 6 Sept. will be held valid and accepted by the Bureau.

California on 11 Sept. had the distinction of being the first state in the Sixth Army Area to receive Federal recognition of a unit of the post war National Guard. The headquarters unit, stationed at Sacramento, will include 29 officers and eight enlisted men when brought to full authorized strength. Present strength is 15 officers and six enlisted men.

U. S. Pacific Fleet—A large Navy task force under Rear Admiral Frederick W. Mahon is underway from Guam to conduct fleet maneuvers in Japanese waters, with visits scheduled at Shanghai, Tsingtao, and Tokyo Bay.

The fleet unit is Task Force 77, composed of the aircraft carriers USS Tarawa, and USS Princeton, cruisers USS Topeka, USS Bremerton, and USS Los Angeles, and destroyers USS Parks, USS Craig, USS Orleck, USS Bass, USS Sickell, USS Vesole, USS Leary, USS Dyess, and USS Bordelon.

Army Chaplains Corps—Chaplain (Maj. Gen.) Luther D. Miller, Chief of Chaplains, U. S. Army, addressed the joint session of the General Convention of the Episcopal Church, 12 Sept., in Philadelphia. Chaplain Miller's subject was "Role of the Chaplain in War and Peace."

Bishop Henry K. Sherrill of the Diocese of Massachusetts, Chairman of the Army and Navy Commission of the Episcopal Church, introduced Chaplain Miller immediately following an address by the Archbishop of Canterbury. In his introduction, Bishop Sherrill expressed the appreciation of the Army and Navy Commission for the great assistance provided by the Chief of Chaplains during the emergency.

Navy Day Plans—Special flower memorial services in honor of all persons who lost their lives at sea in defense of this country in World War II, will be conducted again this year in connection with observance of Navy Day, 27 Oct., the Navy League of the United States has announced. Last year, in appropriate ceremonies, Navy planes and ships scattered flowers over the waters of the world to express the sentiments of a grateful nation.

To afford the people of the United States an opportunity to participate in this traditional ceremony for those who have died at sea, the Secretary of the Navy has designated various port cities within the continental United States to receive flowers for transport to sea on Navy Day. All flowers received before midnight, 26 Oct., will be put aboard naval vessels or planes. After appropriate all-faith memorial services, the ships and planes will proceed to a point out of sight of land and there the flowers will be scattered on the waters. Those who wish to take part in these services should contribute only one flower, preferably wild or home grown. In no case should the money spent for this purpose exceed a modest sum.

The flowers should be addressed to "Senior Naval Chaplain" at one of the following ports:

Portland, Me., Boston, New London, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, D. C., Norfolk, Corpus Christi, Charleston, S. C., Wilmington, N. C., (or Cherry Point), Savannah, Jacksonville, Miami, Pensacola, Tampa, Mobile, Chicago, San Diego, Terminal Island, San Francisco, Portland, Ore., and Seattle.

Medical Department—Eighty officers of the Army Medical Department are currently enrolled in civilian medical universities and colleges for the ultimate purpose of providing the best medical care possible to the American soldier, Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, The Surgeon General, announced this week.

During the calendar year of 1946, more than 180 officers will have taken specialized courses in some 25 medical or allied subjects in 27 leading medical schools. Many of the courses are of three months' duration while a few run up to a year. It is the Surgeon General's policy to assign officers to shorter courses wherever possible.

A paper has been submitted to the Surgeon General's Office reporting results of experiments carried out by Capt. D. A. Karnofsky, MC, who worked in cooperation with Drs. L. F. Carver, C. P. Rhoads and J. C. Abels in searching for a chemical agent which would have about the same effect as x-radiation on the tissue of malignant growths. One now appears to have been discovered in a curious way. Although as a means of therapy it appears to have no particular advantage of x-radiation and in some ways is decidedly inferior, it is of great interest as the first material with this capacity. In experimenting with the effects of mustard gas on the human organism in order to devise adequate defenses and proper medical treatment it was discovered that the gas produced effects on lymphatic tissue very similar to those caused by heavy x-radiation.

The new Deputy Chief Surgeon of AFMPC is Col. Albert R. Dreisbach, formerly head of the Preventive Medicine Division, Office of the Chief Surgeon, Brig. Gen. James A. Bethea, Chief Surgeon, has announced.

Colonel Dreisbach replaces Col. H. F. Currie of DeFuniak Springs, Fla., who has returned to the United States to reenter civilian practice.

Navy Uniform Regulations—Male officers under instruction at civilian educational institutions and those under instruction in civilian industrial establishments may wear civilian clothing at all times. The provisions of this directive, however, do not apply to Naval ROTC staffs or officers of Administrative Commands.

Effective 20 Sept., civilian clothes may be worn by all officers of the Navy Nurse Corps and the Women's Reserve on authorized leave of absence, shore leave, or in off-duty status on shore, and by all enlisted personnel of the Women's Reserve when on liberty or authorized leave of absence. Paragraphs in Wave Uniform Regulations not in accord with this directive have been cancelled.

Senior Officers Present in foreign countries will exercise discretion in granting permission to wear civilian clothes having regard for existing instructions and the local situation.

Cavalry—At a retreat parade held in Tokyo recently, the 2nd Squadron, 8th Cavalry Regiment was presented with the Distinguished Unit Citation, by Maj. Gen. William C. Chase, 1st Cavalry Division Commander. The 8th Cavalry Regiment, Headquarters Troop, 2nd Cavalry Brigade, and the Division Band participated in the ceremony in which the award was bestowed in recognition of the drive of the now famous "Flying Column," which advanced through a hundred miles of Japanese held territory to become the first American troops to enter Manila.

Brig. Gen. Hugh Hoffman, Commander of the 2nd Cavalry Brigade during the Luzon campaign, looked on as General Chase bestowed the honor, and presented Army Commendation Ribbons for outstanding performance of duties to Col. Thomas Roberts, Sgt. Paul Gray, and Sgt. Martin Waldron of the 8th Cavalry Regiment.

Of the original members of the task force that took part in the drive into Manila, only five remain with the 1st Cavalry today: Capt. Bruce Howland, Sgt. J. B. Blair, Sgt. H. G. Callahan, and Sgt. O. E. Mitchell of the 8th Cavalry Regiment, and Sgt. Hoy Mommet of the 1st Medical Squadron. These men were singled out for special award of the Distinguished Unit Citation Badge.

Marine Corps—Maj. Gen. Ross E. Rowell, who has more service in the Marine Corps than any other officer or enlisted man now on active duty, is to retire following his discharge from the U. S. Naval Hospital, Bethesda, Md., where he is now a patient. He was commissioned in August, 1906, and has served continuously on active duty for 40 years. He will be 62 on 24 Sept.

The U. S. Marine Corps Base, Naval Operating Base, Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, was redesignated on 19 August as the Marine Barracks, Naval Operating Base, Guantanamo Bay.

Hq. Replacement and School Command—Recent arrivals include Maj. Gen. Orlando Ward, to Command Replacement and School Command, Ft. Bragg, N. C.; Col. Mark E. Smith has been designated as G-4; Col. Barksdale Hamlett, Capt. Charles J. Dominique; Col. Paul R. M. Miller is being transferred from RTC, Ft. Bragg to Hq. R&SC.

Departures: Capt. Robert A. Liby has been transferred to RTC, Ft. Bragg; Capt. Willis S. Riddick, aide to Maj. Gen. Irwin has been transferred to Hq. V Corps; Lt. Col. Jacob K. Rippert, has been transferred to Office Chief of Staff, Washington; Capt. T. F. Zeigler has been transferred from IRTC, Ft. McClellan and TDY at Hq. R&SC to 7th Army, Ft. Bragg. Col. Paul J. Mitchell to Organized Reserves, Colorado.

Infantry School—The famous 756th Tank Battalion, which supported three Infantry Divisions during World War II, has been reorganized at The Infantry School, Ft. Benning, Ga., after a year of inactivation and is looking for "Old Tankers." The most critical need is for mechanics, tank crewmen and other technicians but all comers are welcome. Anyone enlisting for the 756th is assured direct delivery to the outfit. Maj. D. L. Benton, Jr., is, at present commanding the 756th.

Officers assigned to The Infantry School during the week of 7 Sept. to 14 Sept. were: Lt. Col. William H. Blakefield, Herbert E. Elitz and James O. Jones; Maj. Samuel L. Proffitt and Frederick C. Spreyer; Capt. Dale A. Emery and Lt. John F. Tremblay.

Transportation Corps—New assignments at Ft. Lawton, the Transportation Corps' sub-installation of the Seattle Port of Embarkation, include Col. John P. Crehan as Post Executive replacing Col. William H. Donaldson, Jr., who was appointed commanding officer; Lt. Col. Bertie E. Craig as Director of Personnel replacing Lt. Col. Aca F. Miller, and Maj. Jesse L. Haire replacing Lt. Col. James B. Jarnagin as Director of Training and Operations.

Army Nurse Corps—The President of the American Nurses Association, Miss Katharine J. Densford, of Minneapolis, Minn., recently began a tour of Army hospitals in the U. S. Zone of Germany. Accompanied by Lt. Col. Nina M. Baker, ANC, Theater Director of Nurses, Miss Densford is visiting American Army hospitals to obtain information concerning nursing requirements and accomplishments in the Theater. She will report her findings to members of the American Nurses Association.

Navy Nurse Corps—Capt. Nellie Jane DeWitt, (NC), USN, superintendent of the Navy Nurse Corps, will be among the leaders of the Federal Nursing Services who will be in attendance at the Biennial Convention of the American Nurses' Association which meets in Atlantic City, New Jersey, late in September.

Lt. Comdr. Helen Ernest, (NC), USN, reports to the Naval Hospital in Philadelphia after almost 18 months of duty as Senior Nurse aboard the Navy's hospital ship Repose.

Lt. Comdr. Gladys Newell, (NC), USN, goes to the recently opened Naval Dispensary at Portland, Maine, from the Hospital at Newport, R. I.

Lt. Comdr. Emma E. Urgitis, (NC), USN, one of the Navy's original group of flight nurses, leaves her flight duties in this country to report to the Joint Brazil-United States Military Commission in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, for duty in connection with teaching and administration in a hospital which has been established by the two countries there. Her duties will also involve a continuance of teaching flight nursing to Brazilian nurses.

Lt. Comdr. Laura S. DeWitt, (NC), USN, returns to the mainland from the hospital on the island of Guam, to take up duty at the Naval Hospital in Philadelphia.

Any officer of the Naval Reserve Nurse Corps who submits resignation for reason of marriage will remain on active duty until receipt of action on resignation from the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery and orders for release issued by the Bureau of Naval Personnel, according to a recent directive.

Signal Corps—A complete "weather-station-on-wheels," mounted on a truck which can be quickly driven to any location accessible to powerful six-wheel drive Army vehicles and then be set in operation in an hour, is the Signal Corps' answer to the Army's ever mounting demand for more and faster weather data.

The complete equipment, from folding chairs to pencil sharpener, is housed in a specially designed van of a 2½-ton truck. Packed into as small a space as possible, the equipment is securely fastened to avoid damage in rough travel. Delicate instruments are mounted to protect them from shock and vibration. A gasoline power unit, set up outside the van when in operation, supplies current for lights, fans, teletype equipment, radiosonde receptor, and ceiling light projector.

An Information Division, combining the Public Relations Branch and the Information and Education Branch, and adding a Legislative and Liaison Branch, was recently formed at Ft. Monmouth, N. J. Maj. Clarence N. Chamberlain has been designated Chief of Information, with 1st Lt. Earl B. Braly as Assistant, and Lt. Walter Lishke as Information and Education Officer.

Ordnance Department—Col. Harold A. Willis will retire from active service 30 Sept. in the grade of colonel.

Col. Richard Z. Crane, formerly stationed at Frankford Arsenal, Philadelphia, has been assigned to the staff and faculty of the Industrial College of the Armed Forces, Washington.

Among recent promotions in the regular army, from major to lieutenant colonel are: Harold R. Turner, (temp. lt. col.); Glenn C. Wilhide, (temp. lt. col.); Eugene D. Regad, (temp. col.); Floyd C. Devenbeck, (temp. col.).

Finance Department—Maj. Gen. William H. Kasten, Chief of Finance, U. S. Army, and Col. Donald T. Nelson, Asst. Chief of Finance, left Washington last week for an inspection trip to the Army Finance Center, OCF, at St. Louis, Mo. Prior to his departure, General Kasten presented the Army Commendation Ribbon to Capt. William H. Haller, Jr., for his outstanding services as Special Services Officer, Finance Replacement Training Center, in 1943. Col. Eugene M. Foster is Acting Chief of Finance during General Kasten's absence.

Capt. D. L. Lane, Director of Training, Finance Training Center, Army Finance Center, OCF, St. Louis, Mo., visited the office of the Chief of Finance to discuss finance training activities with Maj. William R. Hickman, Chief, Finance Training Branch, Administrative Management Division, OCF.

The Airborne School—Brig. Gen. William N. Gillmore, 82nd Airborne Division Artillery commanding officer, has arrived at the Airborne School to attend Basic Airborne Training Class B4. General Gillmore, of Bastogne fame with the 101st Airborne Division, joined the 82nd upon de-activation of the "Screaming Eagle" Division.

Field Marshal Montgomery's visit to The Airborne School included a tour of installations, Saturday, 14 Sept. He chatted wittily with Brig. Gen. William M. Miley, school commandant, who chuckled heartily at several of the genial Field Marshal's puns. The gallant British soldier was particularly delighted with the huge C-82 air transports.

Brig. Gen. Miley, school commandant, announced two additional Airborne training courses are now in full swing at The Airborne School. The first, is the Air Transportability Course, designed to instruct the techniques of transporting cargo for airborne operations. The second course, is in conjunction with the 3rd Air Force, and involves the highly technical phases of Pathfinding in Airborne operations.

Adjutant General's Department—Brig. Gen. Thomas J. Davis, formerly head of the old Military Personnel Division, AGO, arrived in Washington this week from Mexico where he spent some time on leave preparatory to retiring from active service. He called on Brig. Gen. H. B. Lewis, Acting The Adjutant General, and on Col. R. M. Levy, acting Assistant The Adjutant General for Personnel.

Col. Leon C. Boineau has been transferred to The Infantry School and will leave Washington next week for his new assignment. He has been chief of the Army Publications Service. On Thursday night, Colonel and Mrs. Boineau were tendered a fare-well dinner at Alban Towers by the officers and employees of his branch.

Bureau of Naval Personnel—A course in personnel administration and training began for 60 selected senior officers on 1 Sept. at Stanford, Ohio State, and Northwestern. The first course will be of one academic year's duration, and it is contemplated that the next course, beginning in July, 1947, will consist of a Summer session the following year and ensuing summer term, for a total of 15 months.

Purpose of the course is "to develop and maintain in the Navy by advanced formal education a group of general duty officers who will provide informed leadership in personnel administration and procedures including training, and who will apply standard scientific principles and recent developments in civilian personnel practices to the needs of the Navy."

FLEET Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Chief of Naval Operations, graciously crowned the Queen of the Presidents Cup Regatta, Tuesday evening, when Miss Edith "Drule" Snyder, daughter of the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. John W. Snyder, mounted her throne, at the Sylvan Theater on the Monument Grounds.

The lovely young girl was escorted by Lt. Col. James Batt, White House Aide, and was attended by a bevy of ladies-in-waiting, each in turn escorted by young officers of the Services. The court ladies included the Misses Patricia Hannegan, daughter of the Postmaster General; Marilyn Krug, daughter of the Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Krug; Laureta Braden, daughter of the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Spruille Braden; Nora Martins, daughter of the Brazilian Ambassador; Elena and Gabriela Mora, daughters of the Chilean Ambassador; Jane Lingo, daughter of Comdr. and Mrs. Harrison Lingo; Jocelyn Freer, daughter of the Commissioner of Federal Trade; Mary Calvert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Baltimore Calvert and Marian Cummins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cummins.

After the ceremonies around the Monument, the company repaired to the Shoreham Hotel, where Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Maloney gave a buffet supper for the Queen and her Court and a few additional friends. Admiral and Mrs. Nimitz were among the guests.

Col. and Mrs. Asa M. Lehman and Mrs. W. C. M'Clintock have arrived at the Army and Navy General Hospital, Hot Springs, Arkansas, and are occupying the Commanding Officer's quarters. Upon their arrival they were honored by a reception at the Eastman Annex, which was attended by two hundred and fifty members of the staff.

In route to Hot Springs, Col. and Mrs. Lehman visited their son, Captain Hugh Roberts Lehman and his wife at Wright Field, Dayton.

Captain and Mrs. Lehman will go to Columbus, Ohio, where Captain Lehman will attend the Chemical Engineering Dept. at the University.

Miss Elizabeth Renth, daughter of Col. Robert L. Renth, USA, and Mrs. Renth, will enter University of California at Berkeley. Miss Renth is an honor graduate of La Jolla High School. Col. Renth is stationed at Randolph Field, Tex., but Mrs. Renth maintains the family home in La Jolla Hermosa.

Mrs. Goodwin Compton is spending a few months with her sister and brother-in-law, General and Mrs. Daniel Van Voorhis, at The Van Voorhis Farm, Nashport, Ohio.

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Leonard Dickson Wellington are now at home to their friends at Jacaranda Road, Pachappa Hill, Riverside, California.

Their daughter, Mrs. Fred B. Shiflet, Jr., is making her home with them.

Mrs. Ira T. Wyche and daughter, Elizabeth, have recently joined Major General Wyche, Commanding General, First Service Command, in Boston. The family will make their home at the Hotel Commander, Cambridge.

During the war years, Mrs. Wyche was at their home in Pinehurst, N. C., where she was prominently active in Red Cross activities. Miss Wyche was a recreation worker with the American Red Cross, stationed in the southeastern area of the United States.

Weddings and Engagements
LT. GEN. and Mrs. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, of Fort Myer, Va., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Gloria Vandenberg, to Capt. Robert Ransome Miller, USA.

Miss Vandenberg was graduated from Western High School, Washington, and Edgewood Junior College at Briarcliff, N. Y. Her father, who commanded the 9th air force overseas, is at present director of central intelligence group.

Capt. Miller attended the Samuel Johnson Academy and is a graduate of Ohio State University. He is a member of Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

The wedding will take place in the late fall.

From Frankfurt, Germany, comes word that Miss Martha Eileen Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William James Murphy of Edinburg, Tex., was married there 19 Aug., to Capt. Franklin Prague Shaw, Jr., of Fort Thomas, Ky., son of Col. and Mrs. F. P. Shaw, sr., now in Tokyo, Japan.

The ceremony was performed before a flower-banked altar at three p.m. in the garden at Schloss Friedrichschof, the Kronberg castle, which is now the Officers' Club for U. S. Headquarters in Frankfurt. A reception followed on the terrace of the castle.

Capt. James Smith, Army chaplain from Continental Base Section, officiated.

Mrs. George Rehkopf of Fort Worth, Texas, was matron-of-honor, and Mrs. Robert Peden, also of Fort Worth, was another attendant. Maj. Stewart Meyer of Fort Bliss, Texas, now in the G-1 Division at USFET Headquarters, was best man. Ushers were Major Robert Peden and Major George Rehkopf, both of Fort Worth, Texas, now in the G-2 Division at USFET Headquarters.

The bride wore a gown of white satin with a train. It had a yoke of lace, and was made with a basque, buttoning down the back. She had a veil of Brussels lace, draped from a tiara of small white flowers, and she carried a bouquet of white carnations.

After a trip to Paris and the Riviera, Capt. and Mrs. Shaw will live in Frankfurt, Germany. Mrs. Shaw is in the News Coverage Section of Public Relations Division, and Captain Shaw is in the Intelligence Branch of G-2, both in USFET Headquarters.

Mrs. Shaw is a graduate of Edinburg Junior College, Edinburg, Texas, and the University of Texas, Austin. Captain Shaw graduated from Bernard Preparatory School in Washington, D. C., and the U. S. Military Academy, Class of January, 1943. During combat he served with the 4th Division and the 12th Army Group.

Honeymooning at Hot Springs, Va., are Mr. and Mrs. Jerald Shropshire Howe, who were married 12 Sept., at St. Mary's Chapel, Washington Cathedral. The Rev. H. Woods officiated. The bride is the former Barbara Doran Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Witte Jones, Washington. The bridegroom is son of Col. and Mrs. James Henry Howe, also of Washington.

Gowned in ivory satin with off-shoulder neckline and wearing an antique embroidered illusion veil with a ruff of garlands and white orchids, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She had as her maid of honor Miss Llewellyn Good. Bridesmaids were Miss Margaret Thors, daughter of the Minister from Iceland and Miss Mary O'Brien. Henry Witte Jones, Jr., brother of the bride, was best man. Ushers were Donald Atkin, Short Hills, N. J.; Lawrence Lewis Hooper, Ruxton, Md., and John Deas, Columbia, S. C. A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents in Spring Valley. Mrs. Howe attended Mount Vernon Junior College. Mr. Howe attended West Point and Haverford College. They will make their home at Haverford, Pa.

Miss Paula Ruth Sarnoff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Sarnoff of 151 Central Park West, was married 15 Sept., in the Crystal Garden of the Ritz-Carlton, New York City, to David Irving Oreck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Oreck of Duluth, Minn., by the Rev. Dr. Sidney Tedesche.

The bride wore a princess gown of white satin, with a wide bertha of rose-point lace and long sleeves, and a veil attached to clusters of orange blossoms. She carried a prayer book with a marker of white orchids.

Miss Lenore Cohen was maid of honor and Miss Joan Infeld, a cousin of the bride, was the only other attendant. Robert Paul Oreck was his brother's best man.

Mrs. Oreck, a niece of Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, was graduated from the Fieldston School and attended the University of Rochester. Her husband attended the University of Minnesota before entering the AAF, and subsequently served as navigation officer aboard a B-29 in the Pacific theater.

Col. and Mrs. Paul E. Burrows of Wright Field, Ohio, announce the marriage of their daughter, Lynn Cary to Lieut. Frances John McIntosh, USNR, at Floyd Bennett Naval Air Station, N. Y., Friday 2 Aug. Chaplain Giles Webster performed the ceremony after which a beautiful reception was given by Mrs. Busch Greenough in the private Ball Room at the St. Regis Hotel.

Mrs. Theodore Gengarelli was the bride's only attendant and the bridegroom's twin brother, Lieutenant Michael McIntosh was best man. The bride was given in marriage by her father. After the reception they went on their honeymoon to Atlantic City and other beach resorts. The bride's parents gave a wedding supper for the bridal party on the roof of the St. Regis on the Wednesday before the ceremony. Cadet Wm. C. Burrows came from West Point for the ceremony. The bride attended Mt. Vernon Seminary in Washington, D. C., and the groom is on terminal leave from The Navy and will finish his law course at Harvard University.

In Ottawa, Canada, a wedding of interest which took place quietly on Saturday afternoon, 7 Sept., in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was that of Patricia Graling Rankin, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Francis John Graling, of Washington, to Lt. John Fergus Maclare, son of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Charles Henry Maclare, of Ottawa. Rev. Ian Burnett performed the ceremony, which was attended by the immediate relatives and friends.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and her only attendant was Miss Mia Atherton, daughter of the United States Ambassador and Mrs. Atherton, as maid-of-honor. Lt. Donald Maclare was best man for his brother, and the ushers were Major Frank Wooton and Lt. Geoffrey Hughson, RCN, (R).

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the United States Embassy residence, the home of the Ambassador to Canada and Mrs. Atherton. The bride's health was proposed by the Ambassador. Later the young couple left for the Laurentians. They later will take up residence in Fredericton, N. B.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Harry C. Archer, wife of Maj. Archer, USA, Commandant, and Mrs. Jean Dueq, all of Washington, Mrs. J. G. Maclare, and Brig. and Mrs. D. A. White, of Montreal.

Mrs. Maclare was the widow of Officer Ronald W. A. Rankin of the RCAF.

Joining the list of September brides is Miss Anne Elizabeth Dabney, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Walter Davis Dabney of Washington, D. C., whose marriage to Hugh Caldwell Quinn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Langdon C. Quinn of Atlanta, Ga., took place at 8 p.m., 7 Sept., in Walter Reed Chapel.

Chaplain Howell G. Gwin officiated at the full candlelight ceremony before an altar banked with palms and white dahlia.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory satin trimmed with seed pearls. Her full-length veil of illusion was held by clusters of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white roses, stephanotis, and white orchids.

Mrs. Walter Davis Dabney, Jr., of Uvalde, Texas, was the matron of honor and the maid of honor was Miss Dorothy (Please turn to Page 70)

WEST POINT, N. Y.

12 Sept., 1946

A Retreat Review of the United States Corps of Cadets was held on the Parade Field here today for the presentation of awards to cadets of the Classes of 1947, 1948 and 1949 for distinguished excellence in scholarship. Maj. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Superintendent of the United States Military Academy, was the reviewing officer. He was accompanied by the Commandant of Cadets, Brig. Gen. G. J. Higgins, by the Dean of the Academic Board, Brig. Gen. R. G. Alexander, and by other members of the Academic Board. Upon presentation of these awards, General Taylor personally commended and congratulated each cadet named, and conveyed to them his confidence in their ability to further justify their designation as distinguished cadets and "star men" of the Military Academy.

Among the recipients were twenty-four cadets of the Class of 1947, ten of the Class of 1948, and fourteen of the Class of 1949. To be designated as distinguished cadets and "star men," they must achieve an average of 90 per cent and be among the top 6 per cent of the class. They are awarded the five-pointed star which may be worn until the following annual examination. The star, three-fourths of an inch in diameter, is worn on each side of the collar of the dress coat and the full-dress coat.

The West Point Post Softball Team won the championship of the Eastern Division of the First Army 12 Sept., by defeating the Fort Hancock team with a score of 6 to 2.

The Finals of the Eastern and Western Divisions of the First Army will be played at the West Point Field Artillery diamond 17, 18, and 19 Sept. Officials for the games will be Burger, Vernoll, and Burnell. The winning team will receive the Commanding General's Trophy, and the individual members of each team will receive trophies and cups.

FT. KNOX, KENTUCKY

12 Sept. 1946

Lt. Col. Edward E. Von Kaenel was awarded the Legion of Merit by Maj. Gen. John W. Leonard, commandant of the Armored School and post commander, in an impressive ceremony at Armored School Headquarters. Colonel Von Kaenel, Director of Training in the Weapons Department, distinguished himself with the 140th Field Artillery Battalion, 37th Infantry Division, in the Southwest Pacific. He was awarded the decoration for meritorious conduct and outstanding services which covered a nine month period, from September, 1944 to June, 1945.

The Fourth Regiment, Replacement Training Center, pushed across three unearned runs in their half of the fourth inning to beat the Armored School Troops nine for the Post Baseball Championship 3-2 at Cornwell Field under the lights. School Troops finished first at the conclusion of Post league play, and met the leading RTC team for the Post Championship. Col. John F. Davis, deputy post commander, presented trophies to the winning team.

In compliance with a War Department directive, a large number of civilian employees at Fort Knox were recently dropped from the pay rolls to meet economy demands. Efforts are being made, however, to reinstate the discharged employees.

Maj. Arvyn W. McElroy, Weapons Department, and Capt. John W. Ervin, Tactics Department, arrived in Washington, D. C. last week to attend a 12-week course at the Navy Monitor School.

Chief Warrant Officers Horace Wood, and Cecil W. Denham have recently been appointed as assistants to Lt. Col. J. Gravata, Adjutant General.

GREENVILLE ARMY AIR BASE, S. C.
13 Sept. 1946

Finals in a base tennis tournament were held at GAAB last week to determine the singles and doubles team to represent Third Air Force at the AAF Tournament at Maxwell Field, Ala., getting underway this week.

The winners in the doubles were Capt. Frank J. Bush and Capt. Russell Neldon, who defeated Col. Edward T. Imperato and Maj. Pardey 9-7, 6-0, 4-6, 6-3. The two singles to represent the Third Air Force are M. Sgt. McQuesten and M. Sgt. Valko. The doubles team and the two singles will compete for the championship of the AAF in the tourney at Maxwell Field.

In order to reduce the number of lost-time accidents at GAAB, the Ground Safety Office, headed by Lt. Walter P. Trible, has launched an intensified accident prevention program. The program to show the cause and effect of accidents and thus prevent future recurrence is to consist of the "safety conscious" education of the base military and civilian personnel. Plans call for safety lectures and movies in the base theatre, and also the dispersal of safety suggestion boxes on the base.

Col. Robert B. Cox, Assistant Chief of Staff of A-2 of the Third Air Force, GAAB, has been selected to attend the first class of the Command and Staff School at the Air University, Maxwell Field, Ala.

Maj. Gen. Thomas B. Larkin, the Quartermaster General, opened the first Officers Advanced Course at The Quartermaster School, Camp Lee, Va., this week, urging officer-students to assist him in making the Quartermaster "the best corps in the whole army."

Nearly 60 officers, ranging in rank from first lieutenant to colonel are taking the ten-month course. Among the students are Maj. Simeon M. Valdez and Capt. Lorenzo B. Camins of the Philippine Army and Major John M. Crawford of the British Army staff in Washington. The officers, the majority of whom are of field grade, will receive lessons in general, administrative and supply subjects, army tactics and techniques.

The ten-month Officers Advanced Course is the first under the new Geron plan, army educational system for officers which provides for branch immaterial courses and basic schooling before commissioning, followed by duty with troops. Then the officer is eligible to go to the advanced course in his particular arm or service, such as the one presently being conducted at The Quartermaster School.

Two Congressmen joined the Quartermaster General and Brig. Gen. Roy C. L. Graham, commanding general of Camp Lee, in welcoming the incoming officer-students on Sunday evening at the Quartermaster School Officers Club. They were Representatives J. Vaughan Gary of Richmond, Va., and Patrick Henry Drewry of Petersburg.

Students were introduced on the receiving line to Col. A. N. Stubblebine, Jr., commandant of The Quartermaster School and other top-ranking School officials. Among those present were Lt. Col. Clarence O. Gilly, assistant commandant of the School; Lt. Col. James W. Nichols, executive officer; Lt. Col. Frank V. Barchard, commanding officer of the School's Demonstration Battalion and Lt. Col. Clarence D. McGowen, School inspector.

Langdon C. Quinn, Jr., of Atlanta was his brother's best man and the ushers included Justus C. Martin, Clark Howell, Jr., and George Groves of Washington, Jr., William C. Appleby and Alex Mayer Hitz, Jr., all of Atlanta, George Groves of Washington, and Arthur L. Zerbe, Jr. of Pelham Manor, N. Y.

The reception was held at the Carlton Hotel and the couple later drove to St. Simons Island, Ga. They will make their home in Atlanta.

The bride is a graduate of Mount Vernon Seminary and of George Washington University where she was a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority.

Judge and Mrs. Michael J. Brown of Highland Falls, New York, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Patricia, to Lt. John A. Riedel, Air Corps, USA, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Riedel of Boulder, Mont. Lieutenant Riedel was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in June 1946, and is stationed at Williams Field, Ariz.

An engagement of wide interest is disclosed with the announcement by Dr. and Mrs. Jones Hallard Berge that their daughter, Sabra Ann, will be married to Marine Lieut. Richard Hilton Bushnell, son of Capt. and Mrs. Carl Hilton Bushnell, USN, of Coronado. The wedding which will take place next summer will join two prominent families who have been friends for many years.

The early 19th century home of Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Reesman in Lancaster, Ohio, was the scene of the marriage of their daughter, Dorothy Wray, to Col. Donald William Graham, U. S. Army Air Corps, on Saturday, 3 Aug., at 4:30 in the afternoon. Colonel Graham is the son of Mrs. Jack B. Graham of Oakland, Calif., and the late Mr. Graham.

The Rev. Robert C. Bow officiated. The bridal gown was of silk mouseline de soie over taffeta, and was designed with a sheer yoke at the neckline, long, tightly fitted sleeves and a full skirt terminating in a train. Insets of Venetian lace achieved an off-the-shoulder effect, and the same lace was used in the sleeves and to edge the double peplum. The three-quarter-length veil of bridal illusion was gathered to a Mary Queen of Scots bonnet of heirloom Chantilly lace, a gift of Mrs. Charles LaRue. She carried a colonial bouquet of sweetheart pinocchio roses, stephanotis and fern, and tiny pink rosebuds. The traditional fleur-de-lis WURTSMITH—Died in a plane crash near Brevard, N. C., 13 Sept. 1946, Maj. Gen. Paul B. Wurtsmith, temporary commander of the 8th Air Force.

Obituaries

Maj. Gen. Paul B. Wurtsmith was killed with four others 13 Sept. when the plane in which they were riding struck a mountain in North Carolina. General Wurtsmith was en route from Selfridge Field, Mich., to MacDill Field, Fla., where he was to have taken command of the Eighth Air Force.

Funeral services were held at the Fort Myer, Va., Chapel 18 Sept., with burial in Arlington National Cemetery.

General Wurtsmith was born at Detroit, Mich., 9 Aug. 1906. He served as an Air Corps flying cadet from August, 1927 to June, 1928, when he was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Air Reserve. He was appointed a second lieutenant in the Regular Army Air Corps the following February.

General Wurtsmith's record in the Pacific was brilliant throughout the war. His exploits as a colonel in Australia earned him the Distinguished Service Medal. In January, 1945, he assumed command of the Thirteenth Air Force. Returning to the United States in the summer of 1946 he was assigned to duty at AAF Headquarters in Washington. A few weeks ago he was assigned to the Strategic Air Command and on the day of his death orders were published assigning him to the Eighth Air Force at MacDill Field to become commanding general.

For the past two years, Miss Higgins has been a secretary in the office of Rep. Roger C. Slaughter of Missouri. The fiance is with the Joint Army-Navy Air Intelligence in Washington. The wedding will take place in the fall.

Col. Willfred R. Higgins, USA, and Mrs. Higgins of Ft. Brooke, San Juan, P. R., announce the engagement of their daughter, Shirley, to Lt. Comdr. Wayne R. Bise, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph J. Bise of Bluford, Ill.

For the past two years, Miss Higgins has been a secretary in the office of Rep. Roger C. Slaughter of Missouri. The fiance is with the Joint Army-Navy Air Intelligence in Washington. The wedding will take place in the fall.

Mrs. Winthrop Palmer and Mr. Carlton H. Palmer of New York City, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Winthrop Bushnell Palmer, to Lt. Col. James Orr Boswell, son of Lt. Col. Walter O. Boswell, USA, Ret., and Mrs. Boswell, of Washington and Phoenix, Ariz.

The wedding will take place in New York City 26 Oct.

In the Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Church 3 Sept., Miss Audrey Justyn Rider, daughter of Maj. Ernest Bascombe Rider, M. C. AUS, and Mrs. Rider, became the bride of Mr. Verne Lewis Upton, Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Upton of Hastings, Nebr. Dr. Edward G. Latch officiated at the ceremony.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a white French organza gown trimmed with chantilly lace and made with a train. Her finger-tip veil of illusion well from a tiara fashioned of the chantilly lace and trimmed with fresh stephanotis. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls with a diamond clasp, which was a gift of the bridegroom, and her flowers were white roses and orchids.

The attendants were Miss Jean Upton, maid of honor, and the Misses Frances Rose Stricklin, Nancy Adkins and Muriel Lacey, bridesmaids. Their gowns had lace bodices with bouffant skirts of net.

The bridegroom had for his best man Mr. Ernest B. Rider, brother of the bride. The ushers were Mr. Otto Nicholas Vega, Mr. James McCullen Stricklin and Mr. James Martin.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the Army and Navy Town Club.

They will make their home in Lincoln, Neb.

Mrs. Upton attended the University of Minnesota and the bridegroom attended the University of Nebraska until he started his training in the Navy Air Corps and became a Navy pilot in 1943. He received his wings and commission with rank of ensign 21 March in '45, at Naval Air Station, Corpus Christi, Tex.; completed operational training in Miami, Fla.; served four months with VL-97 based at N. A. S., Grosse Pointe, Mich.; was discharged 21 Nov. 1945 and is now in the Naval Reserve.

Financial Digest

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder announced this week that a reduction of the national debt by $2 billion will be effected on 1 Oct. This will be done by retirement by cash payment of $2 billion in maturing short-term securities, bringing the total reduction of the national debt since 1 March to $17.4 billion. The debt is now $265.7 billion. The transaction will bring the debt down to approximately what it was last 1 Oct.

Sales of securities for the purpose of raising money for corporate enterprises totaled $867 million in the first half of the current year. This is the largest total for any similar period since 1931, according to the Securities Exchange Commission.

Treasury and Internal Revenue Bureau tax experts hold that State veterans' bonuses are exempt from Federal taxation. These payments, it was explained, constitute gifts rather than compensation in the meaning to which tax is applied. As a gift tax applies to the giver rather than the receiver the payments would also be free from Federal gift taxes, as a State cannot be taxed. The Federal gift tax applies only to gifts of over $3,000, an amount larger than any bonus which has been proposed.

Bank debits as reported by banks in 334 leading centers for the month of August aggregated $82,728 million, the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System has reported. During the past three months total debits for the same centers amounted to $260,772 million or four per cent above the total reported for the corresponding period a year ago. At banks in New York City there was a decrease of two per cent compared with the corresponding three-months' period a year ago, and at the 333 other centers there was an increase of nine per cent.

Return of the fleet of Liberty ships turned over to the Supreme Commander for the Allied Powers last fall for the repatriation of Japanese troops and nationals from Pacific areas to the homeland began this week with the arrival of 11 vessels at San Francisco and Seattle.

The War Department announced that advices from General of the Army Douglas MacArthur's headquarters indicate that at least 100 Liberties are to be returned to the United States for decommissioning by the Army Transportation Corps at the two west coast Ports of Embarkation and turned over to the Maritime Commission for disposition.

On their voyage to the United States, the Liberty ships are manned by Japanese crews who will assist in the decommissioning and then return to Japan on barracks ships which will accompany each block. The first block of vessels, which arrived on the west coast, is known as "Block A."

At San Francisco and Seattle, the Water Divisions will take over the vessels on arrival and will supervise removal of all Army property. Except for emergencies, such as sickness or accident, the Japanese will remain aboard their ships until transferred to the barracks ships, and will return to their homeland without having set foot on shore.

The War Department stated that they will be provided "sufficient visual evidence to disprove their war-time government's reports that San Francisco and Seattle had been wiped out by Japanese attacks."

The training gunboat USS Wilmette (IX-29) has been declared surplus to military needs, and is for sale for scrapping. The Maritime Commission announced. As the SS Eastland, the vessel was built in 1903 for fast freight and passenger service on the Great Lakes, and, after capsizing in 1915, was purchased for use of the Illinois Naval Militia. She was purchased by the Navy in 1917 and converted to a gunboat.

Navy Training Plans

We find ourselves, militarily, in a push-button age with little more than the push-buttons. However, through the Navy's program of research, which embraces Naval laboratory, educational and industrial research, the Navy is investing heavily in brain power to produce the military power we may need for national safety in the push-button days ahead.

The Navy has augmented the scientific training of its own personnel with a system of contracting for research with civilian scientists throughout the United States.

Through contracts with university and industrial laboratories, the Office of Naval Research is sponsoring investigations which should give the Navy full consideration to all possibilities in jet propulsion, gas turbines, guided missiles, piloted aircraft and atomic power.

This Navy-civilian research arrangement has already resulted in contracts being drawn on 167 research projects at 58 universities and research laboratories.

Nearly all of the 1,000 scientists and engineers to be employed at the Navy's new $15,000,000 Naval Ordnance Laboratory at White Oaks, Md., will be civilians.

"In particular," he said, "I beg you to give earnest attention to this one thought: never in our history have we been able to prevent a war by our customary unpreparedness." He continued:

"It is true that with the help of allies, and by our own frantic and often wasteful efforts when war is actually upon us, we have always been able to win our wars, in spite of this initial weakness. But these methods, (if they can be called methods) have never been successful in avoiding war, and all that modern war means: the terrible loss of life and maiming of men, the deplorable destruction of property, the heavy and long continued appropriations for veterans care, and the general dislocation of the national economy. Let's now give it a try the other way: let's maintain our armed forces at a strength adequate to our worldwide responsibilities, a strength such that any aggressor will greatly prefer not to impose upon us any situation which we cannot tolerate. If it succeeds, the cost in dollars will surely be less than the cost in lives, and in dollars too, which we have to expend in war. If it does not succeed, because a group of madmen should still insist upon a course which would leave us no alternative but to fight, then at least, because for the first time in our history we will be fully prepared, the fight will be shorter, and the issue never in doubt."

The Navy Industrial Association elected the following new officers for the year: C. C. Felton, Vice Pres., Revere Copper & Brass, Inc.; Chairman of the Board of Trustees; C. G. Stoll, Pres., Western Electric Co., Inc.; Vice-Chairman of the Board of Trustees; H. H. Rogge, Vice-Pres., Westinghouse Electric Corp., Chairman of the Executive Committee; Hobart C. Ramsey, Worthington Pump & Machinery Corp., President; H. J. W. Fay, Pres., Submarine Signal Co., Vice President; Louis R. Crandall, Pres., George A. Fuller Co., Second Vice President.

The following were re-elected: H. H. Buttner, Federal Telephone & Radio Corp., Secretary; Sidney J. Clark, Otis Elevator Co., Treasurer; and Bromwell Ault, Interchemical Corp., Asst. Sec., Asst. Treas.

Surplus Army Hospitals

Seven additional Army General Hospitals will be declared surplus by the Army by 31 Dec. of this year, the War Department announced 18 Sept.

On 30 Sept., the following hospitals will be named surplus to the needs of the Army: O'Reilly General Hospital, Springfield, Mo.; Mayo General Hospital, Galesburg, Ill.; Cushing General Hospital, Framingham, Mass.

Moore General Hospital at Swanman, N. C., will be released 15 Nov.

On 31 Dec., Halloran General Hospital, St. George, Staten Island, N. Y., and Mason General Hospital, Brentwood, Long Island, N. Y., will become surplus. Wake-man General Hospital, Camp Atterbury, Ind., will be closed as a general hospital on the same date.

Present plans indicate that Veterans Administration will take over Cushing General Hospital and possibly Moore General Hospital. The State of Illinois has indicated it is interested in Mayo General Hospital.

New Navy Amphibious Plane

A new mid-wing monoplane expected to replace the Navy J2F Duck amphibious utility plane is undergoing initial flight tests this week at the Columbia Aircraft Corp., Valley Stream, L. I., N. Y.

Designated the XJL-1, the new plane is powered by an engine delivering 1,425 horsepower for takeoff, and is equipped with JATO (jet-assisted take-off) for rescues in heavy seas.

A feature of the plane which is new to light amphibian planes is the use of tri-cycle landing gear. New to all Navy amphibians is the retracting of the main gear into the wings instead of the hull.

Baltimore CE Office To Close

The Corps of Engineers will close its wartime Middle Atlantic Division Office in Baltimore, Md., 1 Nov., and will merge that headquarters' functions with those of the North Atlantic Division office in New York City, the War Department has announced.

Secretary Forrestal voluntarily and unexpectedly ignored a speech he had prepared covering his recent world-circling tour, and spoke extemporaneously. Vice Adm. Blandy urged preparedness.
